Eye-Witness to Disaster Fixes Death, at 200,000

HUGE LOSS CREDITED TO FIRE

Falling Debris Traps Thousands Who Perish In Tokio Flames
BODIES OF DEAD
CLOG UP STREETS
Hundreds Perish As Government Printing Office Wrecked By Quake

The first eye-witness account of the disaster, along the Pacific coast of Japan, and the appalling loss of life, and scenes of destruction in Tokyo and Yokohama on Saturday was brought to Osaka, more than 200 miles south of the Japanese capital by the Tokyo correspondent of the Osaka Mainichi. The correspondent made his way out of the shaken and flaming city Saturday afternoon during the height of the catastrophe. His story follows:

By Tokio Correspondent of the Osaka Mainichi
(Written for the United Press)
(Copyright, 1923 by the United Press)
(Copyright in Canada)

OSAKA, Sept. 4.—My last sight of Tokio was at 3 p. m. on Saturday.

At that time, in the midst of unchecked fires and repeated shocks, I saw people trying vainly to reach safety, heedless of hundreds of corpses in the streets.

The disaster had come upon Tokyo about three hours earlier.

The first shock was felt at a little before noon on Saturday. The center of the quake was then believed to have been at the bottom of the sea, near Oshima island, about fifty miles southwest of us. It came in the form of a dozen terrible, vertical, four-inch wave movements, the earth beneath us rising and falling.

Within an hour the quake had somewhat subsided, but tremors continued.

200,000 Homes Destroyed
The disastrous conflagration followed the shaking to pieces of Tokio and Yokohama. Yojusuka was almost completely destroyed, as were the districts of Ciebba, Kantagawa, Shizuoka, Saitama.

The extent of the damage and casualties was at first incalculable. At the time I estimated nearly 300,000 houses had been destroyed in Tokio and that a like number of inhabitants had been killed and injured.

The crown prince's palace, nearly all the buildings of the government, the Bank of Japan, the Imperial university and library, department stores, theaters, public halls, all the newspaper offices—these were totally destroyed.

Palace Damaged
The Imperial palace itself was heavily damaged.

The magnificent new "sky scrapers" of which Tokio was proud, and which had been recently completed in front of the central station were destroyed.

Our prince regent, who fled from the Imperial palace at the first shock, later returned to a somewhat detached structure which at first was judged safe. But as the danger continued, he fled again from the city and through Takasaki, sixty miles to the northwest.

One of the most terrible occurrences of those first brief hours in the crumbling, burning capital was when the government printing office collapsed and several hundred employees were killed in the ruins.

500 Girls Perish
Another tragedy of which we heard early was near Fuji, where 500 girl spinners were killed in the crash of the factory.

When I left Tokio, frantic refugees were struggling to escape through streets piled with corpses. The tremendous convulsions of the earth had broken the gas mains of the city and this was followed by numerous fires. The gas became ignited and a hurricane-like wind that blew in from the bay following the shock fanned the flames and whipped them to every part of the city.

Homes Burn Quickly
Houses burned literally like match boxes in a furnace. The fire gained terrific headway until it was impossible to think of checking it.

Bandits Raid Private Car; Secure $150

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Two masked bandits held up four officials of the Western Pacific railroad in their private car attached to train number three between Sacramento and Stockton, Cal., early today and robbed them of between $125 and $150.

The four officials on the car were C. M. Levy, president; C. W. Mason, vice-president and general E. L. Phillips, assistant engineer and C. F. Post, purchasing agent. A flagman, who entered the car while the hold-up was in progress, also was robbed.

POLICE HALT KOREAN PLOT FOR REVOLT

Authorities Fight Pitched Battle With Malcontents Planning Riots in Crisis.

PEKIN, Sept. 4.—Police of Tokio fought a pitched battle with 200 Koreans who attempted to arouse socialists and other malcontents to revolution, according to a dispatch from Osaka today.

The Koreans finally were expelled and martial law tightened, the dispatch said.

The casualties were not given.

WEDDING VOWS ILLEGAL. WIFE ASKS DECREE

Stating that she entered a second marriage, unaware that her first marriage was still in effect legally, Mrs. Lulu M. Scott of Los Angeles today had filed suit in the superior court here, asking annulment of her second marriage, that to Harry E. Scott.

When she married Scott at Ventura July 2, 1921, six years had elapsed since she secured an interlocutory decree of divorce from her first husband, Anthony Ott, Mrs. Scott alleged. She thought, and was advised by her second husband, she said, that the decree automatically became final a year after the interlocutory decree was issued.

It was not until after her marriage to Scott, she declared, that she learned that to be legally divorced, a final decree must be actually entered in court.

Immediately upon learning of the error, Mrs. Scott took steps to untangle her domestic situation. She stated that the final decree has now been entered. Annulment of the second marriage would therefore, it was said, straighten out her marital affairs, and relieve her of suspicion that her bigamous marriage had been entered with intent to violate the law.

It was stated today that Mrs. Scott's action was not for the purpose of allowing her to re-marry Scott legally, and in this connection, it was hinted that the second marriage had not been a happy one.

Mrs. Scott was represented in her action here by Attorney Morris A. Cain.

Heavy Rip Tide on County Coast Yesterday Laid to Fatal Quake

It is a far cry from Newport to Japan, but an unusually heavy rip-tide which prevailed off the Orange county coast virtually all day yesterday was believed by City Marshal J. A. Porter and other beach residents to be directly attributable to the great tidal wave and earthquake which killed countless thousands in Japan.

"Although we did not feel the effects of the twenty-foot ground swells which rocked craft in and near Los Angeles harbor, we did have some of the heaviest rip-tides in the history of the local beaches," Marshal Porter declared.

According to advices received here from Los Angeles, Captain Frank Miller, keeper of the Breakwater lighthouse, reported that the large waves were first observed at 1 a. m.

ORIENTAL AID FEAR COUNTY FUND BEING MADE HERE

Money Taken In at Office of the Register to Be Handed Red Cross

"With three subscriptions totaling $350, a fund for use in aiding Japanese earthquake and fire sufferers was started at The Register office today.

Subscriptions will be received at the business office of The Register.

Money or checks should be sent. Checks may be made out to The Register. Whatever money is received will be turned over in total sum to the Red Cross, for immediate forwarding to division headquarters in San Francisco.

The Register Opens Fund
The subscription was opened by The Register, with a contribution of $100.

This was followed by a volunteer offering of $50 by the Smart-Final company.

Santa Ana chapter, American Red Cross, on approval of a number of its executive committee, set apart $200 from its funds to be turned to Japanese relief.

Quick action is necessary. In order to be of the maximum benefit, funds should be available at once.

List Subscribers
The fund now stands:

The Register.....$100
Smart-Final company.....50
Santa Ana Red Cross.....200

"The Red Cross is already on the ground," said T. E. Stephenson, chairman of Santa Ana chapter, Red Cross. "The instant that word came of the disaster, the Red Cross dispatched aid from other Oriental ports. While it is a large relief fund to draw upon in case of great disaster, the terrible conditions in Japan are such that we will be found for every dollar that possibly can be raised."

Coolidge in Appeal
President Coolidge has issued the following appeal:

"To the people of the United States:
"An overwhelming disaster has overtaken the people of the friendly nation of Japan. While its extent has not as yet been officially reported, enough is known to justify the statement that the cities of Tokio and Yokohama and surrounding towns and villages have been largely if not completely destroyed by earthquake, fire and flood, with a resultant appalling distress, requiring measures of urgent relief. Such assistance as is within the means of the executive department of the government will be rendered, but, realizing the great suffering which now needs relief and will need relief for days to come, I am prompted to appeal urgently to the American people, whose sympathies have always been so comprehensive, to contribute in aiding the unfortunate and in giving relief to the people of Japan.

"In order that the utmost coordination and effectiveness in the administration of the relief funds be obtained, I recommend that all contributions, clearly designated, be sent to the chairman of the American National Red Cross, at Washington, or to any of the local Red Cross chapters, for transmission to Japan."

Yorba Linda Missionary and Kin May Have Been Trapped In Yokohama

Friends and relatives at Yorba Linda of the Rev. Henry Wylie and family today were anxiously awaiting information as to whether the minister and his family escaped the earthquake, fire and tidal wave that wrecked Yokohama.

At the same time, friends of Miss Anna Rohde, formerly a community nurse in Santa Ana for the Red Cross, who for some months has been employed in the office of an exporting firm at Yokohama, were much concerned for her safety. Miss Rohde is virtually certain to have been in the Japanese city when the disaster occurred, close friends here said.

The Yorba Lindans were booked as passengers on the steamer "President Lincoln," which was in the harbor at the time of the big disaster. Concern for the safety of the family was heightened by press dispatches which said that many passengers on the steamer were ashore when the tidal wave struck the harbor. The Rev. Mr. Wylie and his family may have been ashore at the time the city was laid in ruins, it was pointed out.

No Word Fans Alarm

The Rev. Mr. Wylie and his family left here about a month ago on their return to Wuhu, China, a day's travel distant from Shanghai, where the Rev. Mr. Wylie is engaged in missionary work. The Rev. Mr. Wylie had been in the States a year studying. Mrs. Wylie and their children remained at the home of Mrs. Wylie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Rushnell, of Yorba Linda, while the missionary pursued his studies.

The difficulty of getting private messages through between the United States and the Orient served to increase the alarm of the family's friends.

Concerning Miss Rohde and the possibility that she was one of the victims of the Yokohama disaster, Mrs. J. H. Leebrecht, deputy county aid commissioner, said:

"After leaving Santa Ana about three years ago Miss Rohde was in ill health and she gave up nursing for a time, went to Japan and entered the employ of Brunner, Mount & Co., with which one of her relatives was associated. I had a letter from her about two months ago. At that time she expected to remain in Yokohama indefinitely, and I am sure she was there at the time of the earthquake. Miss Rohde has no relatives here. She made many warm friends while here."

S. A. Man Thought Safe
No fears for the safety of her husband are felt by Mrs. Loren Mead, who is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Plavran, 506 South Birch street, she said today, adding that Mead, who is employed in China by the Standard Oil company, was scheduled to reach his destination, Peking, Peking, south of Peking, August 3, a week before the earthquake, tidal wave and fire that are reported virtually to have destroyed Yokohama and Tokyo.

Missionaries Escape Quake, View

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Seventy hundred American missionaries in Japan were attending an inter-denominational conference at Karuziawa at the time of the earthquake, it was announced here today by the Southern Presbyterian board.

The meeting place is 150 miles from Tokio. All of the missionaries in Tokio and Yokohama were believed at the meeting and probably escaped the disaster in those cities. The announcement, made by Dr. J. O. Reavis of the Southern Presbyterian board, was concurred in by Baptist and Methodist boards.

U. S. ENVOY ESCAPES IN JAP QUAKE

Ambassador Wood Reports All Members of Family and Staff Safe After Disaster.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Cyrus E. Wood, United States ambassador to Japan, Mrs. Wood and the whole personnel of the American embassy in Tokio are safe, Wood notified the state department today.

Wood's message said the embassy was totally destroyed by the earthquake.

It was very brief and did not disclose whether any of the other American in Tokio or Yokohama were victims of the disaster.

Today's message from Wood was the first received from any American government representatives in Japan since the disaster occurred.

MUSSOLINI TO BOOST PRICE FOR PEACE

(By United Press Leased Wire)
LONDON, Sept. 4.—If the Greeks fulfill the conditions of my ultimatum and pay up, I will withdraw from Corfu, but they had better pay soon, for next week the price will be higher." Premier Mussolini of Italy is quoted as saying in an interview with the Evening News, Rome correspondent.

"I have no intention of occupying any more Greek territory or employing any other sanctions," Mussolini said, "unless, of course, the Greeks are foolish enough to attack Italian subjects or property."

LEAGUE BEGINS STUDY OF ITALY-GREEK PROBLEM.
GENEVA, Sept. 4.—The league of nations council at 5 p. m. today in open session commenced preliminary discussion of the Greek-Italian conflict.

Former Foreign Minister Salandra, representing Italy, announced it would be impossible to define that country's attitude before tomorrow as Dr. Giuritti, who is bringing data from Rome, will not arrive until this evening.

Japan Death Toll Grows as Victims Are Driven Insane

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Japan's earthquake casualties now range to half a million. The total of lives taken in Saturday's disaster is being augmented hourly as pestilence, hunger and self destruction in the stricken areas increase the tolls by thousands.

The sight of heaped corpses in the streets of Tokio, where flames still burn their way from the ravaged business section toward the Imperial palace, is driving hundreds to hurl themselves in the river.

Those that remain alive, thousands of them terribly injured with no medical aid to be had, face starvation.

The first direct word from an American source in Tokio since the disaster came today in the form of a dispatch to the United Press. The dispatch bore no signature, but included the cable timing symbols used only by the United Press writers and apparently was sent by courier from Tokio by Clarence Duhose, United Press staff correspondent in that city.

Quake Lasts Twenty Hours.
It was relayed by wireless from the Tokioka radio station and received at San Francisco. This message evidently written about midday Sunday, gave the total dead as only 700 to 1,000 and homeless as three million. It said that there was a food and water famine in the devastated cities, in which scarcely a single building is left standing after a series of earthquakes continuing 20 hours.

The exact death list is incalculable—a populated island is reported to have been swallowed up and a peninsula with its people has disappeared in the sea that rushed up in the wake of the shocks, so the number of lives this latest and most terrible of Japanese quake disasters has cost probably never will be known.

Millions Need Food.
More than a million persons are in urgent need of food that a rallying nation is trying to get to them over broken roads, torn rail communications and shattered bridges.

Tales of horror come from the capital as partial communication is established. Soldiers and imperial guards patrol the ruined streets in the almost unrecognizable business quarter where the skyscrapers and modern buildings—Japan's advance towards western civilization—lie in tangled ruin.

Loss Totals Billions
It will cost many billions of dollars and require several decades to restore Tokio to its former grandeur.

Buildings that the quake left standing are being razed by imperial guards to check the spreading fires that approach the palace.

Convicts, liberated when the flames approached the prison, are prowling like beasts of prey among the ruins. Bands of Koreans have clashed with troops and have been driven from the city. Strict martial law is in force.

Hundreds, driven insane by the cries, the sights of horror, the terror of the flames and their own suffering, have hurled themselves into the canals and rivers of Tokio.

In other cities, especially in Yokohama and in nearby Shiba, scenes of destruction and subsequent terror similar to those of Tokio are being enacted.

Reports Fragmentary
But the Japanese nation is cut off for the most part, from communication with the stricken areas and three days after the disaster only the most fragmentary reports of what is going on along the tortured Pacific coast have leaked through.

Three members of the Imperial family, it is definitely established, have perished, but the emperor, empress and prince regent are safe.

The fate of most of the foreigners within the limits ravaged by the shocks Saturday afternoon is not known as yet, but the American consul at Yokohama, his wife and the British consul there were killed and the foreign district destroyed.

Fully 200 members of the Seiyukai party were killed in Tokio in the collapse of the building in which they were holding a caucus, according to a dispatch from Osaka. This report said Viscount Takahashi was among the dead while another dispatch stated he was safe.

"30" BULLETINS
ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 4.—Howdy Wilcox, well known automobile race driver, was killed in a spill at the 200 mile automobile race here today. Heane won the race. Jerry Wonderlich was second and Dave Lewis, third.

PEKIN, Sept. 4.—Japanese officials are now compiling the list of foreigners believed killed and reported missing. The list is large and will not be released until it is thoroughly checked over. It was learned from private telegrams here today.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Coast Guard lookouts here today frantically watched for reaction on the coast from the Japanese earthquake.

Up to an early hour this morning no such manifestation had been observed here.

American Vessels Speeding to Relief of Victims In Disaster

(By United Press Leased Wire)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Speed and effectiveness with which American naval units are being concentrated for relief of Japanese disaster victims was shown in dispatches to the Navy department today from Admiral Anderson, commander of the Asiatic fleet.

Anderson notified the department that he is speeding from Chefoo in Chinese waters, to Yokohama aboard his flagship, the armored cruiser Huron with all available food and medical supplies.

The destroyer tender Black Hawk has been sent to Tsingtao, China, for supplies and it will go thence to Yokohama.

Destroyer division 45, consisting of the destroyers Hulbert, No. 4, and Pruitt, has been ordered to fit out at Ching Wangtao, China, with the utmost dispatch for medical relief in Japan, and proceed as quickly as possible to Yokohama. The commander of this squadron was ordered to "obtain from the marine guard at Peking and from the army all available medical supplies and medical personnel."

The destroyer Pecos, now in the Philippines, has been ordered to load with provisions, flour, beans and other suitable items for the destitute; medical supplies, blankets and miscellaneous supplies; coffins, hardware and all army medical officers available and transport all Red Cross supplies.

The Pecos is to go at once to Yokohama.

The radiogram said, "Feared sank into sea."

Other advices said the same fears were felt for Erosima Island. Advices by various roundabout channels revealed many rumors of islands having disappeared.

"Our reports indicate that several islands may have sunk but it is impossible to verify any of these," was the word which came through the offices of the cable company.

Order Ban on Private Shipping To Japan to Speed Relief Work

(By United Press Leased Wire)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Chairman Farley of the shipping board today notified President Coolidge he had directed the Admiral-Orical steamship company, the Pacific Mail, the Columbia Pacific and the Struthers and Berry company, all operating ships from Pacific coast ports, to the Orient, to withhold all private bookings of thirty days and to hold all their freight and passenger vessels subject to orders for relief work.

Shipping board officials are compiling a list of ships now available at Pacific coast ports or those on the way to the Orient which can be used to carry grain, medical supplies, clothing or other emergency supplies.

The total tonnage is very large and would enable the Red Cross, at whose disposal the ships will be placed, to send great quantities of supplies of all kinds as well as to transport any refugees from the devastated region.

HIGH TIDES ON PONY EXPRESS MEN CALIF. COAST SUBSIDING

(By United Press Leased Wire)
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—The heavy tides which began running off the coast of Southern California yesterday, at times assumed small tidal wave proportions, evidently resulting from the Japanese seismic disturbances, were reported subsiding today.

San Pedro reported everything normal in the harbor there this morning, and nearby beach cities reported no damage had been done by the break tides.

All day yesterday vessels here had difficulty keeping their positions owing to heavy twenty foot high ground swells which followed the tidal waves.

The battleships Idaho and Nevada pitched and rolled so badly that their quarter boats touched the water.

Swells swept over the breakwater and carried away a light-house tender and planking along shore together with all other loose objects.

Vessels coming in today reported that the waves were the highest in their experience.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Coast Guard lookouts here today frantically watched for reaction on the coast from the Japanese earthquake.

Up to an early hour this morning no such manifestation had been observed here.

S. A. MAN DIES AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

(By United Press Leased Wire)
FRESNO, Calif., Sept. 4.—L. Martinez, of Santa Ana, was almost instantly killed and a woman believed to be his wife, was seriously injured about 1:15 p. m. today when a Santa Fe passenger train struck the automobile in which they were riding at the Jensen avenue crossing.

Persons who reached the scene within a few minutes after the crash said that Martinez evidently either failed to see the approaching train or, because of the number of tracks on the crossing, became confused and tried to beat the train across the intersection.

MURDER CHARGE MAY FOLLOW SHOOTING

Facing a possible charge of murder, E. J. Clark, 33, said to have operated a gambling house at Seal Beach, was held in the county jail here today while William Golindo, Los Angeles salesman, was in the Seaside hospital at Long Beach in a dangerous condition as the result of a pistol wound said to have been inflicted by Clark.

According to information obtained by Deputy Sheriff Ed McClellan and Herman Zabel, who investigated the affair Saturday night, Clark was said to have shot Golindo during an altercation near Clark's place of residence. Clark had been placed under arrest by Jack Combs, city marshal of Seal Beach, and was brought to the county jail by McClellan and Zabel.

Clark told the officers, they said, that Golindo and J. W. Kimball, 1126 West Seventh street, Los Angeles, called him from his establishment and sought to hold him up, demanding $500.

"All right boys, I'll step inside and get it for you," Clark told them, according to his story to the officers. Clark then re-entered his place, he said, and returned with a gun instead of the money. He shot Golindo through the abdomen, it was said.

Surgeons operating at the hospital yesterday removed the bullet, which had lodged in Golindo's spine. A section of the intestines also was removed. From the hospital it was stated that Golindo's chances of recovery were poor.

The nature of the charge to be filed against Clark awaits the outcome of Golindo's wounds. The authorities stated here today. They also expressed an intention to investigate Clark's version of the shooting carefully.

ing it. The great wind picked up huge blazing timbers and hurled them along until soon the entire city was in flames.

In the path of the devouring fiery tongues that licked their way, consuming blocks after blocks of flimsy, crowded houses, wounded persons, pinned down by wreckage of the first quakes, were burned alive. Their shrieks filled the air, but none could rescue them.

At noon, tables were arranged and a picnic dinner—a regular feast of good things—was served to over eighty people. The day was given over entirely to social pleasures, the younger people enjoying the plunge and ocean, while the older ones as thoroughly enjoyed the fellowship with one another.

Dynamiter Is Fined $50 In 'Drunk' Case

J. A. Duncan, dynamiter and stump puller, paid a $50 fine to Leopold Geopier, acting city recorder, here today, on a charge of drunkenness. Officer Yoder, who made the arrest, said he found Duncan asleep in an automobile parked at Washington avenue and Ross streets.

The recorder said he fined Duncan the limit because it was Duncan's third offense. Duncan also is scheduled to appear September 11 in the court of Justice J. B. Cox to answer to a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He is at liberty on $500 cash bail.

INJURY TOLL 7 IN ACCIDENTS ON HIGHWAY

Seven persons, all residents of Los Angeles, were suffering today from injuries sustained in a series of traffic accidents occurring Sunday and Monday along the state highway south of Santa Ana. None was thought to be dangerously hurt.

Warren W. Search was able to leave the Community hospital here today after receiving treatment for a dislocated shoulder and bruises sustained when a Pickwick stage, carrying eighteen passengers, overturned near Oceanside, Sunday. Search was the only person brought to Santa Ana.

Mrs. M. Carrillo Jr., Harry Benel, Mrs. Charles Harper and Hilda McKee, were cut and bruised when their touring car collided with a large sight-seeing bus near Irvine last night. The crash took place when the touring car turned aside to avoid a collision with another machine. The bus was badly damaged and the touring car was wrecked. The injured were able to leave the hospital last evening and return to their homes.

Frank Williams suffered a dislocation of the shoulder when his motorcycle was crowded off the highway near Irvine Sunday. Robert Baker sustained bruises and internal injuries in a crash south of San Juan Capistrano Monday at 3 a. m., his car colliding with another machine. The steering post of Baker's car was forced against his stomach with such force as to cause the internal injuries. His condition was said to be showing slow improvement today at the Community hospital.

TELEPHONE SERVICE SYSTEM EXPLAINED

Earl S. Morrow, district manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, gave a striking illustration of telephone service as related to other business in a talk before the board of directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association at a meeting here today.

"A telephone line-up of callers is like a line-up of clients at a bank window," Morrow said. "We see the number of people waiting before the bank window and therefore are patient. We cannot see the people waiting for numbers on the telephones. We scold the operator, therefore, for not giving us instant service."

"In a telephone office the line-up always is like Saturday morning at the bank. The telephone connects with all manners of business dealings."

"Our new building, now in course of construction, and the new equipment with additional switch boards, will give Santa Ana incomparable service."

100,000 MEALS SERVED AT INN HERE IN YEAR

More than 100,000 meals have been served at St. Ann's Inn here since it was placed under the management of G. A. Schweiger one year ago, it was learned today through statistics issued by R. L. Bisby, secretary to the hotel trustees.

An anniversary concert and dinner in celebration of the completion of a successful year under the management of Schweiger was held at the hotel Sunday.

The lobby of the inn was transformed into a flowering arbor as a result of the innumerable floral gifts of well-wishers of the manager.

Conventions in Small Part
Of the 100,000 meals served, three conventions were responsible for only 2 per cent of the year's total. Yet 500 meals were served to members of the California Real Estate association, in convention here, 400 to the delegates to the Federation of Music Clubs convention and 960 to the Lions club members who were three-day guests.

The banquet served on the lawn of the inn on the occasion of the Lions club convention was the largest individual spread at the hotel. Reservations were made for 1,000. The lawn was decorated with lanterns and streamers. The tables were ranged like the ribs of a fan with the speakers' and entertainer's platforms at the apex.

St. Ann's lays claim to the distinction of being the political headquarters of Santa Ana and Orange county. Senator Hiram Johnson and Governor Friend Richardson both have made their headquarters there, it was said.

Flowers Sent
Banquets, in addition to the luncheon clubs, during the first year under "Gustav" have included the Bankers' association, Chambers of Commerce, Boy Scouts, Avocado association, Printers' Association, Newport Harbor association, and the Santa Ana high school student associations and clubs, it was added.

The Ebell club and the Laguna Art association have held their receptions at St. Ann's, Schweiger said.

Reservations were large affairs at the hotel here have been received, he said, even from competitive cities such as Long Beach and Redlands.

Still gracing the lobby of the hotel today were numerous beautiful bouquets, sent to the inn by friends on the occasion of the anniversary reception.

Agrees to Aid Son's Maintenance, Freed

Preliminary examination of C. M. Frazee, charged with failure to provide for his young son, was continued today by Justice J. B. Cox for three months. Frazee, agreeing to contribute $20 per month toward the child's support. Further action at the end of the three months was said by the court to depend upon his keeping the agreement.

PIER FRANCHISE GIVEN DESPITE PROTESTS

With passage last night of an ordinance extending a franchise to the Thomas W. Simmons company of San Francisco to use the Newport Beach pier for the loading of oil tankers, a petition calling for a referendum vote on the action of the council was expected by opponents to be put into circulation immediately, it was learned here today.

W. H. Burnham, spokesman for the Taxpayers' league of Newport Beach, declared that the petition had been drawn by a Los Angeles law firm.

In passing the ordinance granting the franchise, the beach city council ordered filed 543 cards on which persons purporting to be taxpayers of the city registered a protest against the lease. Burnham presented the cards and the council listened to the formal protest which accompanied them.

The franchise ordinance was adopted by an unanimous vote of the board of trustees. H. C. Sloan, who recently resigned his position with a Balboa realty firm because, he said, he considered his views on the granting of the pier lease were not in keeping with the policy adopted by the company, moved the adoption of the ordinance on final passage. L. S. Wilkinson seconded the motion.

Citing the state laws covering the calling of a referendum election, the opinion was ventured that it would take between fifty and sixty days before the voters could be asked to go to the polls on the franchise. Approximately eighty signers will be necessary to call the election, it was said. City Clerk Alfred Smith estimated that there were 3000 taxpayers in the city of Newport Beach.

LABOR DAY INFLUX

TAXES HOTELS HERE

Santa Ana hotels did a land of office business over the holidays, it was learned today. Hotel registers here usually show but few guests between Saturday and Monday, as the commercial men return to their homes over the week-end, it was explained.

Labor day, however, being the customary end of the summer season, brought out a host of guests for hotels here.

"Turning them away," declared
M. J. Cahill, manager of the Kosmore hotel, "We could not find room for another guest."

The Hotel Cooper also was a mecca for the auto tourist.
"Full house," declared W. H.
Seabold, day clerk at the Hotel
Cooper. "Tourists appreciated Santa Ana's new hotel over the holidays."

St. Ann's Inn continued to draw guests to its dining room as well as to its rooms, according to G.
A. Schweiger, manager.

"The holiday business, in addition to the throng of well-wishers who were here at the anniversary
Sunday, served to keep us employed every minute," cSchweiger said.

The anniversary concert and dinner at the Inn was held in honor of Schweiger's first completed year as manager of the hotel.

Three hundred men and women attended at Orange County park yesterday a Labor day picnic which the employer members of the Orange county branch of the Truck Owners' Association of Southern California gave to their employees.
A barbecue, prepared by W. K.
Duffy, steward at the Elks' club here, was one of the outstanding features. Fifteen athletic events were staged in the afternoon.

Members of the Rebekah lodges of the city were concerned today to learn of the death yesterday of Mrs. Ethel Golter, former district deputy of district No. 50. Mrs. Golter died in the Albuquerque sanitarium. Funeral services will be held Thursday, September 6, at 2 p. m., from McAuley's undertaking parlors, Fullerton, with burial to follow in the Fullerton cemetery.

Preparations were being made today to move the Orange County Automobile club office into the Hotel Cooper building, on North Main street, one block north and on the opposite side of the street from its present location. A counter and partitions were being installed in the new quarters.

One hundred and fifty members of the Orange County Shrine club were guests of R. L. Bisby and D.
Eymann Huff at a picnic, featured by broiled steaks, at the Orange County park Saturday evening.
Without a formal program or the like to worry them, the Shriners used the occasion for an evening of fellowship. Louis M. Cole and Leo Youngworth of Los Angeles, both holding high offices in the order, were speakers.

PLASTERING BEGUN ON S. A. Y. BUILDING

Plastering had begun on Santa Ana's $200,000 Y. M. C. A. building today. At the same time S. H. Finley, president of the S. A. Y., reiterated a plea to building fund subscribers to bring their payments up to date.

"We need $10,000," he said, "to make our September payments. We realize that many subscribers have been away on their vacations and that they have had but little time to adjust themselves to routine duties again; yet we must ask them to consider the 'Y' pledges as soon as possible."

The roof frame has been installed on the building in preparation for tiling. Dormitory partitions have been erected and the plasterers put to work. All concrete stairways have been poured.

Ralph Smedley, building secretary, continues to take visitors on a personally conducted tour of the building. "It looks bigger every day," a regular visitor remarked.

decked table and participated in a delicious supper served by J. G.

Martin, B. A. Hershey, N. E.
Christenson, C. R. Brill, H. Rich-

coln, who gave short talks on electrical problems ranging from the dispensing of light trouble jobs to the most intricate telephone wiring.

A committee was appointed to make plans for the next meeting, a plunge party and beach wiener bake to be held in the near future.

CAFE GAMBLING ROOM PLAYERS FINED $625

Justice J. B. Cox today put the finishing touches on a raid by county officers upon a Seal Beach gambling den Saturday night, when he fined three prisoners a total of $635.

Action by the raiding officers and the court completely wiped out what was said to have been a flourishing gaming resort in two upper rooms of a Seal Beach cafe.

A party of officers, including Ed McClellan, chief criminal deputy in the sheriff's office, Under Sheriff E.
E. French, Deputies Dan Adams,
Louis Hoffman, Henry Warner, H.
W. McKague, Lauren Hurd and O.
K. Carr and Constables Joe Ryan and J. L. Elliott, swooped into the cafe Saturday evening, surprised a lookout and prevented the sounding of an electric "buzzer" that would have warned the players upstairs.

Then the officers sauntered leisurely into the gaming rooms, took possession of the stakes and tables and marched the keepers and players away. A "crap" game, with $336 in sight, was broken up; also a roulette game, with $11 on the wheel.

G. G. Parry today pleaded guilty to operating the "crap" game and paid a fine of $300. J. Skelly paid a similar fine, after pleading guilty to operating the roulette wheel. Ralph Braen of Long Beach, who said he was just posing the dice for his first throw when the officers interfered, paid a fine of $10. H. C.
Reed was fined $25 for carrying a concealed weapon. Martin Jesus, Henry Martin and Ray French, found in the rooms, but not participating in the alleged play, were dismissed.

Attorney L. A. West represented the various defendants in court.

Pays Fine of $10 On Disturbance Charge

John Ames, arrested at Talbert on a charge of disturbing the peace, paid a fine of $10 today in Justice J. B. Cox's court. A. R.
West, similarly charged, was expected to be brought before Justice Cox later today.

Charges Hunters Out Minus State License

Clarence E. Taunt and Bill W.
Box were charged with hunting on filed with the district attorney here today by A. B. Cooper of La-

'PHANTOM' AUTO THIEF TAKES MANY RISKS

A rapidly widening circle of country was being searched today for a virtually new touring car and a "phantom burglar" who stole the car from the floor of the Appleby Motor company, Fifth street and Broadway, here Saturday night, according to report made to the police by R. E. Joyner of the automobile firm.

Lacking a spare tire, the car thief jacked up the automobile of Y. Barnhill, traffic officer, which was in the garage for ratification, and removed a tire and rim.

No clue as to the identity of the thief was found on the premises.
Officials of the automobile company were at a loss to describe the intruder or the possible hour he entered the Broadway garage.

It was suspected that a passkey was used in making entry to the premises, as both the front and rear doors had been opened, the police said.

City Marshal Claude Rogers dispatched circulars and telegrams to sheriffs of surrounding counties to be on the watch for the new car, which was supplied with a dealer's license, "1 B 2531."

PASTORS PLAN OWN SERVICES SUNDAY

With vacations over and the union church services at Birch park closing last Sunday night, pastors of the city today were preparing to resume next Sunday the regular schedule interrupted when the union services were instituted the first Sunday evening in August.

According to the Rev. Otto S.
Russell, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was in charge of arrangements for the union meetings, the evening services throughout the month were very successful. Attendance each Sunday evening was large and the sermons were good,
the pastor said.

The Rev. William E. Roberts, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, preached the sermon Sunday evening.

The Rev. Will A. Betts, pastor of the First Methodist church and president of the Santa Ana Ministerial association, today announced that he would resume services at his church next Sunday evening, the highway, Costa Mesa. Will take of views at Lake Tahoe taken by him during his sojourn at that resort.

JEWISH NEW YEAR TO BE OBSERVED

Jews of Santa Ana today were preparing to celebrate next week the Jewish new year with appropriate services at the Seventh Day Adventist church, corner of Fifteenth street and Broadway.

Rosh-Hashana services will be held Monday September 10, at 6
p. m., and also will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, September 11 and 12.

Yom-Kippur services, Kol Nidre, begin Wednesday, September 19,
at 6 p. m., it was announced.
Dr. Lerner of San Bernardino will officiate at both services.

SECRECY VEILS POLICE PARLEY: HINT SHAKE-UP

Rumors of a shake-up among members of the Santa Ana police department were in the air today as result of the confidential parley City Marshal Claude Rogers held with his men Saturday afternoon.

An order was posted Saturday morning that all patrolmen were to report to the chief at 1 p. m.
Being the first of the month, it was the occasion of the change of shift, the night men being changed to day shift, and the day men to night shift, allowing all men to appear conveniently.

When questioned as to the purpose of the conference, Chief Rogers said:

"Confidential. A little confidential talk on rules and regulations of the department."

Rules and regulations relative to the conduct of members of the local police department recently were drafted by the chief. In the draft he dwelt at length upon officer-like conduct of his men.

No serious infraction of any rule by a member of the department has been reported publicly since posting of the official general orders.

Chief Rogers, however, has insisted, since taking office, that it would be his policy to prevent crime rather than to wait until it was necessary to capture and punish offenders.

Whether this fact had any bearing on the secret session Saturday afternoon could not be learned.

The official nature of the conference could not be denied though, apparently, it was not thought necessary to call upon Police Commissioner Claude L.
Killen. Commissioner Killen was not about the chief's private office, where the conference was held.

H. B. LABOR DAY FETE MAGNET FOR THROG

Ten o'clock yesterday morning saw the start at Huntington Beach of what proved to be the most elaborate and successful Labor day program ever presented in Orange county. Packed with thousands from Orange county, Los Angeles and other Southern California points, the beach city entertained more people than it was thought possible to accommodate.

Early in the morning the crowds began to pour into town. At 10 o'clock the program began. Mayor Richard Drew extended the welcome of the city to the thousands of visitors in the city. His address was responded to by W. J. Cameron, chairman of the general Labor day committee. Adolph Germer, a labor speaker, delivered the principal address of the day. Another speaker was Mrs. Frances Noel.

Most of the day was turned over to sports and various other entertainments. Auto pivoting, boxing, fashion show, bathing girl parade, carnival, free vaudeville, high diving features and a free dance in the new municipal auditorium were among the amusements. The auto pivoting was in charge of Elmer Lamb, who arranged that event last year. Several boxing exhibitions were given at the bandstand, with local talent mixing it in lively fashion.

A fashion show, which was second in interest only to the bathing girls' parade, was staged under the direction of D. Applebaum of Santa Ana. Beautiful girls in comely costumes participated. Again, immediately after the bathing girls' parade, Applebaum provided an extra attraction. Several of the beauties, dressed in the latest bathing creations, furnished the treat.

The band interspersed the program with selections of classical and popular music. Side shows drew their share of the attention. Six acts of vaudeville were programmed in the evening.

The closing event of one of the most successful Labor day celebrations in the county was the dance given in the new municipal auditorium between 9 and 12 p. m. Music for the dance was furnished by a special union orchestra.

'HELLO GIRL' WINS SEA BEAUTY PRIZE

High-heeled shoes are not practical for bathing, decided the judges of the bathing girls' parade held at Huntington Beach yesterday, in connection with the Labor Day celebration.

At least one girl found that the stilt-like effect in footwear had better been left at home when the judges firmly, but very kindly enlightened her that had her high heeled shoes not been impractical for bathing she would have probably been awarded first prize.

The parade started at the Chamber of Commerce building and the girls marched down the pike to the bandstand where they took positions on the stage. The judges mounted the platform, the better to view the beauties, with cries of "Down in front" and "How do you get that way?" greeting their ears. The girls paraded about the platform to the accompaniment of music. One by one and then in a parade they marched and the judges scratched their heads.

The final selection ended in Mrs. Lena P. Marsh, chief operator of the Huntington Beach telephone exchange being awarded the first prize of $50. Mrs. Marsh won the first prize for the contest last year.

Miss Vivian Wilson was awarded second prize of $35. Miss Olive Duling, the girl with the high heels, from Brea, was awarded third prize amounting to $25. Mrs. W. C. Patton received fourth prize of $15.

The girls were judged on the following points:

First general beauty, 40 per cent. Second, the best carriage, 30 per cent. Third, the best figure, 20 per cent. Fourth, the most popularity, 10 per cent.

Labor Day Auto Avalanche Gains Difficult Passage Through S. A.

Thousands of motorists of Southern California today were wending their way to their respective homes because they could not "make the grade" last evening in the wind-up of one of the greatest traffic jams that has been experienced in the Southland, an incident of the double holiday, according to reports made here today.

Automobiles poured through Santa Ana Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning in perfect streams, headed toward the beaches and the mountains south and east of this city. The majority of the motorists attempted to return home late yesterday afternoon, with the result that there were traffic jams on all the highways to the south, including the state highway to San Diego.

Traffic officers attempted to maintain a semblance of regulation strings through the city and as far out as the bridge crossing the Santa Ana river on West Chapman street. In the city, officers were stationed at First, Third and Main streets and the Santiago bridge on North Main street, while county officers were stationed on the highway near the river bridge.

According to a report made by one of the city officers to Frank Lutz, day desk sergeant at the city police station, 2,000 cars traveling north passed the intersection of Main and Fourth streets between 5 and 6 p. m. yesterday. Traffic officers were on duty here until after 9 o'clock last night.

Orange county beaches were crowded over the week-end, it being declared that hundreds were without sleeping accommodations Saturday and Sunday nights.

Thousands Without Beds
Frank Preston of the firm of Pearce & Preston, local bean brokers, is authority for the statement that 45,000 men and women were at San Diego without sleeping accommodations. He was told there were 10,000 cars at Tijuana last night that could not get out of the border city because of the crowded condition of the one thoroughfare leading from that more or less famous place.

Belief was expressed here today that the big traffic of yesterday was the last for this summer.

Only three accidents were reported to the police station. All of them were of a minor nature, consisting mostly of damaged fenders. In the cases reported, no one was hurt.

Al Fresco Bridge Is Source of Pleasure To Many Guests

Happily holding sway over a garden which is at once the delight and the envy of her friends, Mrs. Harry T. Duckett was one of a trio of hostesses, including Mrs. Alice Harris and Mrs. Philip Hatzfeld who on Saturday chose that garden as the favored spot in which to open the season with one of the most delightful parties imaginable.

Guests were bidden to luncheon and were first greeted at the Hatzfeld home which adjoins that of Mrs. Duckett, where they were encouraged to choose most entrancing sun-bonnets in every delicate tint of crepe paper to be found.

With artistic eye, each guest chose her gay head-dress either to harmonize with the color of her frock or else to be in charming and effective contrast. The result was delightful and as all gathered in the beautiful Duckett garden, to be seated in the checked light and shade at the waiting luncheon tables, the effect was of a swarm of brilliant butterflies, flitting under the overhanging branches of the magnificent walnut tree which dominates the garden.

Luncheon was served to the musical accompaniment of the tinkling fountain and at its conclusion, guests remained seated at the small tables to enjoy an afternoon of bridge.

Adding to the charming outdoor effect were the gifts awarded Mrs. Angus J. Crookshank, Mrs. Calvin Lester, Mrs. Carl Newman and Mrs. John I. Clark, the latter prize being a special one presented the wearer of a bonnet with two shades of color in its rosettes. Gifts were lovely vases or jars in intricate effect, each filled with garden flowers similar to those adorning various tables and tabourettes scattered over the lawn and bearing jars of brilliant zinnias and dahlias, the latter from the dahlias beds of Mrs. J. N. Bartholomew.

The trio of hostesses were congratulated upon having opened the social season so auspiciously and many were the comments regarding the originality which would make possible so charming an affair and one which succeeding hostesses will find difficult to equal and impossible to surpass.

Asked to enjoy the pleasant affair were Mesdames Betty Atkinson, George D. Briggs, J. P. Baumgartner, W. L. K. Benton, J. W. Bartholomew, Vern Bishop, Kensil Brown, A. J. Crookshank, C. S. Crookshank, Fred Chapman, Ray Chandler, Addie Collins, L. A. Collier, J. I. Clark, Ella Campau, H. H. Dale, C. V. Davis, W. L. Deimling, Otto Eggee, W. A. Flood, O. K. Forgy, F. E. Farnsworth, V. I. ## Father Officiates at Sunset Wedding of His Daughter

As the setting sun swept across the spacious porch of the Watry home in Garden Grove Saturday evening, it illuminated the bridal path for a daughter of the home, Miss Irene Watry and Mr. Ernest Chapman of Long Beach.

Quantities of autumn's lovely blossoms transformed the porch into a garden for the impressive ceremony at which the bride's father, the Rev. Francis Watry, officiated.

Norrell Rose of this city at the piano offering the prelude from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and the accompaniment for "Calm is the Night" (Bohm) which was beautifully sung by Hugh Osborn, the friends enjoyed a recital as they awaited the approach of the bride party.

Pacing slowly from the living room as Mr. Rose played the ever beautiful "Wedding March" from Lohengrin, the Rev. Mr. Watry led the party, followed by the bridesmaid, Miss Peggy Rudd of Los Angeles and the best man, Mr. Osborn and then by the bride upon the arm of her husband-to-be.

Lovely in her gown of soft white georgette with moire ribbon trimming, Miss Watry wore no veil in accordance with the wishes of her friends, who felt that her beautiful hair should be uncovered on the supreme occasion of her life. Dressed high, its soft waves formed a fitting crown not even marred by an ornamental comb. Her flowers were bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

Her honor maid, Miss Rudd, wore a charming frock of periwinkle blue georgette crepe and carried sweet-peas in the same lovely daisies.

Following the ceremony and its consequent happy wishes, guests enjoyed looking at the array of beautiful gifts and were later escorted to the attractively decorated dining-room where wedding refreshments were served to the accompaniment of piano music offered by Mr. Rose who played many of Chopin's beautiful preludes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left for Los Angeles that evening, planning to go to Big Bear the following day and enjoy that delightful resort for the next two weeks. Upon their return they will be with Mr. and Mrs. Watry at Garden Grove until Mr. Chapman decides upon his future place of residence. At present the young people are discussing making their home in Alhambra.

Country Club

"Cards at the Country club." Again the call has gone forth and on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, members will wend their way over the winding roads to the cozy little clubhouse where they will be greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Preston, hosts for the evening.

Cards and dancing have offered their pleasures alternately every two weeks during the summer and it is with reluctance that the members are going to abandon the informal summer affairs for the greater formality of winter social events.

Above were the following guests, Lee Plummer, wife and two children, Mrs. Clara Denious, Mrs. Mary Carrage and daughter Frances, Miss Ruth Winter and Charles and George Winter, Harriett Reed, Willard Mears, Louise Markwald, er and Mabel Dixon.

Camps represented were Rollins, Noble, San Bernardino, Lieut. Bidwell, Riverside, Harry Wallace, Redlands, Calumfit, Santa Ana, Roosevelt, Los Angeles, Col. W. G. Schreiber, Pomona, Ensign Bagley, Pasadena, Bennington, San Diego and Glendale, Glendale.

There was to have been a fat man" race for comrades weighing more than 200 pounds but the challenger, John McCoy, of Colton, ate so much fried chicken that he could not run at all; "Big Dan" Mears, of Santa Ana, had just returned from an automobile trip to Portland, Oregon, of which he had gained an additional pound.

Charles E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, did not feel good (after dinner) and Commander A. W. Lyter, of Pomona, was too fat and so the race did not come off.

Calumfit Folk Join In Labor Day Picnic

(BY A COMRADE)

A large delegation of Spanish War folks from Santa Ana and vicinity, attended the big picnic given by Lieutenant Bidwell Camp, of Riverside; Rollins-Noble Camp, of San Bernardino and Harry Wallace Camp, of Redlands, at Fairmount Park, Riverside. After a pot luck dinner with coffee and ice cream furnished by the committee there was speaking under the direction of the splendid commander of Rollins-Noble camp, comrade G. L. Gregory. The first speaker he introduced was the department commander, Tom C. Galbraith, who spoke of the good work accomplished by his administration and advocated the equal standard, in pensions, for all soldiers who have followed "Old Glory" in any of the wars.

The master of ceremonies then spoke of the splendors of Orange county park and the fine time he had enjoyed there at the picnic given by Calumfit camp and auxiliary and introduced Charles E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, assistant department adjutant, to tell the camps assembled all about the picnic on August 5, and what Calumfit camp members would do for any of the camps desiring to hold a picnic in the park.

John J. Wickham, department adjutant, was then called on to tell the comrades what the regulars thought of the volunteers in 1898-99.

Commander C. E. Lefevre, of Los Angeles was introduced as the commander of the largest camp of Spanish War Veterans in the world.

Past Commander E. M. Lowell, of Riverside then addressed the comrades about new members, after which the party adjourned to the band stand to listen to the band concert. The picnic was voted a complete success and will probably be made an annual affair.

Those in attendance from Calumfit Camp No. 26 were: Charles E. Dixon, M. C. Cooper, H. T. Reed, B. F. Botkin, Charles W. Winter, Dan R. Mears and John Markwald. Calumfit auxiliary No. 39 was represented by Mesdames Bertha N. Dixon, Mary Cooper, Nannie H. Reed, Buelah Batkin, Minerva Winter, Hannah Bentz, Mattie Mears, Odella Markwald and Miss Louise Plummer and Miss Mildred Reed, with the

Joys of Forest Home Sought By Many Santa Anans

Offering at once, the delights of a mountain-setting with tall pines and huge oaks soaring skyward with easy accessibility from the coast cities, Forest Home was the mecca for Labor Day vacationists from all sections of Southern California.

Santa Ana's feeling toward Forest Home is peculiarly one of possession for the city has undoubtedly claimed the lovely spot as her own and the large number of Santa Ana cottagers give the winding, rock-bordered paths quite the aspect of Broadway and North Main street.

Many cottagers entertained over the week-end, among them being Mr. and Mrs. George H. Goodwin, whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hennion. At "Fernbank," the delightful cabin of the Hervey Truebloods, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Rohrer of Los Angeles were entertained.

The Fred C. Rowlands were also in their cabin as were the Woods of Garden Grove and the W. S. Deckers. Other Santa Anans in camp included Mr. and Mrs. Everett White and their family, the Joseph Metzgars, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Knox and countless others, occupying cabins and entertaining their friends, while at the Inn were registered Mr. J. J. Jacobs and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hillyard, who were entertaining quite a party. C. M. Rowland and Leonard Baker with a group of Boy Scouts added to the merry makers.

The holiday interval yielded a variety of entertainment embracing dancing, an enjoyable Sunday evening program at the assembly hall, a horse show, trout fishing, invigorating swims in the icy mountain waters of the plunge and hikes to various points with the Big Falls offering most allure.

Gay and informal visiting was quite an event and as each cabin yielded of its guests to go on to the next place, the crowd finally assumed large proportions, tirelessly demanding "when do we eat?"

As entertainers extraordinary at the different cabins, Joseph Smith and George Richardson succeeded in covering themselves with glory.

Most of those who were spending the season in camp, were planning to return last night or today, as many were facing the last minute preparations for sending young people to school.

Having completed the first year of their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Newman of Orange celebrated most pleasantly Sunday when they gathered in their charming home, all the members of their little wedding party of just a year ago.

Mrs. Newman most acceptably demonstrated to her guests, her ability as a cook for the delectable dinner was all of her own preparation, with the help that a well-disciplined husband of a year could offer.

The table was attractively arranged with garden flowers and places were indicated for the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Newman, the officiating minister, the Rev. M. L. Pearson and Mrs. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, Miss Nellie Moores and Mrs. Harriett Earl.

Unable to decide whether the first anniversary was that of cotton or paper, the guests solved the question by taking a variety of attractive little gifts in each material. These were accompanied by charming verses written by Mrs. Wheeler and read by the "bride." The gift presentation was most happily made by Mr. Wheeler and an effective touch was given the gathering by the reading of the marriage service by the Rev. Mr. Pearson.

The impressive effect was heightened by the fact that Mrs. Newman wore her wedding gown and even carried flowers, the gift of a friendly Spanish neighbor who had learned of the nature of the party and showed her interest by sending the lovely blossoms.

In the evening, the guests evinced their friendliness toward the officiating minister by gathering at the Presbyterian church where the Rev. Mr. Pearson as pastor, conducted the evening worship.

Realtor's Auxiliary

Elaborate plans for a picnic to be given by the Board of Realtors auxiliary are being perfected by Mrs. Carl Mook and Mrs. Stanley Goode, the appointed committee on arrangements.

Charles E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, did not feel good (after dinner) and Commander A. W. Lyter, of Pomona, was too fat and so the race did not come off.

Country Club

"Cards at the Country club." Again the call has gone forth and on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, members will wend their way over the winding roads to the cozy little clubhouse where they will be greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Preston, hosts for the evening.

Cards and dancing have offered their pleasures alternately every two weeks during the summer and it is with reluctance that the members are going to abandon the informal summer affairs for the greater formality of winter social events.

Above were the following guests, Lee Plummer, wife and two children, Mrs. Clara Denious, Mrs. Mary Carrage and daughter Frances, Miss Ruth Winter and Charles and George Winter, Harriett Reed, Willard Mears, Louise Markwald, er and Mabel Dixon.

Camps represented were Rollins, Noble, San Bernardino, Lieut. Bidwell, Riverside, Harry Wallace, Redlands, Calumfit, Santa Ana, Roosevelt, Los Angeles, Col. W. G. Schreiber, Pomona, Ensign Bagley, Pasadena, Bennington, San Diego and Glendale, Glendale.

Bride of a Year Bids Wedding Guests to Formal Dinner

Having completed the first year of their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Newman of Orange celebrated most pleasantly Sunday when they gathered in their charming home, all the members of their little wedding party of just a year ago.

Mrs. Newman most acceptably demonstrated to her guests, her ability as a cook for the delectable dinner was all of her own preparation, with the help that a well-disciplined husband of a year could offer.

The table was attractively arranged with garden flowers and places were indicated for the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Newman, the officiating minister, the Rev. M. L. Pearson and Mrs. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, Miss Nellie Moores and Mrs. Harriett Earl.

Unable to decide whether the first anniversary was that of cotton or paper, the guests solved the question by taking a variety of attractive little gifts in each material. These were accompanied by charming verses written by Mrs. Wheeler and read by the "bride." The gift presentation was most happily made by Mr. Wheeler and an effective touch was given the gathering by the reading of the marriage service by the Rev. Mr. Pearson.

The impressive effect was heightened by the fact that Mrs. Newman wore her wedding gown and even carried flowers, the gift of a friendly Spanish neighbor who had learned of the nature of the party and showed her interest by sending the lovely blossoms.

In the evening, the guests evinced their friendliness toward the officiating minister by gathering at the Presbyterian church where the Rev. Mr. Pearson as pastor, conducted the evening worship.

A cordial invitation has been extended the general public to be present. Miss Hale gives the recitals at frequent intervals to the pleasure of her friends and relatives of her young pupils.

WALL ST. JOURNAL FINANCIAL REVIEW

Wheat Takes on Heavy Tone Due to Alarm Over Japan Situation

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Stocks displayed steadiness today in the early dealings on the stock exchange in the face of the happenings in Japan over the week-end, which naturally were the principal consideration when Wall Street returned from its holiday. Apparently the unfavorable aspect of the earthquake was at first partially outweighed by the thought that the disaster might prove the "evil wind" which would blow some good in the shape of increased business to American concerns.

But when the financial community had been given time to take into consideration the tremendous economic losses which were bound to ensue from the tragedy and the probability of heavy withdrawals of Japanese funds from this country, a selling move developed in the general list which gathered increasing momentum toward the close.

Declines ranging from one to four points took place among the active stocks and the tone of the whole market was heavy in the final dealings. The market closed lower.

JOY OF HEALTH WOMAN'S RIGHT

Mrs. Evans Freed from Female Weakness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"I had female weakness with pains in my back, and I could not stand on my feet for any length of time. I was working in a factory but had to quit, as I was too much on my feet. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and I can hardly believe it myself that I am well. Oh, it is a grand thing to have your health! I feel well all the time and can go out like other women and not feel that awful torture. When I took your medicine first I thought it would cure after the first bottle, but I am glad my husband kept me at it. I have had nine bottles and now I am well."—Mrs. JENNY EVANS, 1604 Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

If you are suffering from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or other forms of female weakness, you should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The reason is given in letters like these, and we have published the words of them. You may expect that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. Try it.

MASONIC LODGE BEING FORMED BY G. G. MEN

ANAHEIM, Sept. 4.—Members of the Masonic order who reside in Garden Grove and vicinity have organized a new Masonic lodge, with eighteen names on the application as charter members, it was learned here today. Temporary officers have been named and as soon as the inspector's examination is concluded, the lodge will apply for a dispensation.

The new lodge has already made plans for a new Masonic Temple. They have an option on a lot 50 by 140 feet and $4,000 has been pledged toward the building. It is reported that fully seventy-five Master Masons reside in the Garden Grove district, all of whom are enthusiastic over the efforts to form a new lodge and erect a temple.

It is planned to make the building an income property by having storerooms on the ground floor. A special meeting will be held in the Garden Grove school house to night at 8 o'clock.

SOCIAL-PERSONAL NOTES OF BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 4.—Miss Estelle Vanduff, entertained some of her classmates last Wednesday afternoon, August 29 at her home on Huntington Beach boulevard. Covers were laid for Mrs. Ruby Vanduff Green, Mrs. W. T. Vanduff, Mrs. Effie Adams Koppl, Mrs. Pearl Porter Worthy, Mrs. Edith Washburn Kasper, Mrs. Frances Porter McCormick, Mrs. Eunice Hammett Osmun, all of Huntington Beach, Mrs. Adelle Armitage Haney of Capistrano, Mrs. Mabel Ulrich Graham of Long Beach; Mrs. Hazel Knight Jumper of Balboa, Mrs. Eva Day Leebrecht of Honolulu, Mrs. Bessie Day Wellman of Los Angeles, Miss Hazel Adams of Los Angeles and Miss Margaret Halley of Santa Ana.

On the back of the dainty place cards was the announcement of the coming marriage of Miss Vanduff to Perry Willmarth Hurst of Fresno.

Miss Vanduff is a graduate of Pomona College. Mr. Hurst is a student of dentistry at the University of California.

Miss Mildred Moore, who has been employed at the Security Trust and Savings bank during the summer vacation has resigned her position to attend the Junior College in Santa Ana.

Miss Mildred Moore left Sunday for San Diego to visit relatives for a few days.

SMART SET ADOPTS PORKERS FOR PETS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—"The Playground of America" is literally packed with visitors, who will remain until after the beauty pageant, September 5, 6 and 7. The season is now at its zenith.

Fads and fancies of the boardwalk strollers are introduced every second of the day.

Women dressed in every color of the rainbow parade "fashion row" from sunrise until midnight. Peach, yellow, red and green are the favorite colors of the fair sex, with colors of Chinese type a close second. Knickers for morning wear are appropriate.

Carnes have been discarded and the woman with the staff is having prominence. It was considered sensational when debs made their appearance leading monkeys, but the latest is the pig. Several young society ladies have acquired little, snow-white porkers. Dressed with a bow around its neck the pig trots along beside its fair owner.

Knitting has not been displaced in popularity here. Needles click morning, noon and night. Because the sweater is handy during the cool evenings, the industrious knitters seem to concentrate on that article.

Thousands pack the beach daily to "buck" the surf. The water has been ideal all season, with its temperature hovering around 74 degrees. Rolled tops are now allowed.

EXPECT HANDBILL LAW TO BE PASSED

If the city council, at its meeting to be held here tonight, functions according to schedule, it will adopt an ordinance prohibiting the promiscuous distribution of handbills on streets and in the yards of private residences.

Directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association today discussed the proposed ordinance but took no action, which fact was taken to indicate that the ordinance will be adopted without opposition from merchants, unless business men should appear on their own initiative and present a protest.

Other matters of minor importance are expected to come before the council for consideration.

During the month just closed twenty-nine permits were issued: twelve for dwellings, seven for private garages, one for an apartment court, one for a filling station, three for remodeling and four for additions. The valuation of permits this year to date is $535,775.

SWIMMER FAILS IN CHANNEL CROSSING

(By United Press Leased Wire)
AVALON, S. C., Sept. 4.—E. A. Banfield, who swam twelve of the fifteen miles which separates this island from the mainland, was resting today preparatory to making another attempt.

Banfield encountered three difficulties in his nine hour, 32 minute swim in the Santa Catalina channel yesterday—a repercussion of the Japanese tidal wave, a sea infested with sharks, and the unusually cold current which sweeps down from the Arctic.

It was the cold temperature of the water, however, that eventually was the cause of Banfield's failure to reach the island. His limbs were almost completely stiffened by the water's chill when he was pulled aboard the power boat within three miles of his goal.

MATE OF GIRL, 14, JAILED AS THIEF

Said to be the husband of a 14-year old girl, George Berger, 18, was lodged at the county jail today by Officer Yoder of the Santa Ana police force charged with robbing the motor car agency of George Dunton here. Berger was said to have been employed at the garage.

Berger was said to have stolen automobile tools and accessories, clothing from automobiles left in the garage and finally today $16 in cash from the office till.

The alleged young husband confessed Yoder said. Several articles of clothing, tools and accessories and cash were recovered the police said.

BANDIT SHOTS MAN WHO FAILS TO HALT

(By United Press Leased Wire)
SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—Refusing to stop his automobile at the command of a bandit who leaped on the running board of his car, Dr. J. L. Arbogast of this city was shot and fatally wounded near this city late last night.

Mrs. Marion C. Gleason, who was with Dr. Arbogast at the time, is being held by the sheriff today as a witness.

She declares that the bandit leaped to the running board of the auto as they slowed down for a bridge on the homeward trip. Not heeding the bandit's command to halt, she jumped ahead. With a curse, she declared, the bandit thrust a pistol against the doctor's head and fired. The car plunged into a ditch and the bandit vanished.

FIGHT WITH SHARK AT NEWPORT TOLD

NEWPORT BEACH, Sept. 4.—This is a tale of the sea, as told by Richard Gunther, a fisherman. A truthful man is Mr. Gunther and so known and accepted by those who know him best. And this is the tale he told, while sitting in his boat, pulled upon the sand at Newport Beach.

"You know I am what might be called a lone fisherman. In the early dawn I go chugging down the harbor and out into the wide Pacific. On and on I go until the island of Catalina looms up ahead and then I cast out my lines. If the albacore are about I sometimes catch one; if not I move to another location.

"One day last week I arrived upon my particular fishing ground and soon had all my lines out. For a while I got no strike at all, but after a while I noticed a disturbance in the water some half a mile away. The ocean was being lashed into foam and fish were jumping up out of the water and falling back again with loud splashing, only to leap up again. And then I saw why. A huge shark was having his breakfast. Soon the commotion arrived and in a moment I was surrounded by fish of various kinds striving to escape from their enemy. Then the shark appeared. It was about thirty feet long and resembled the 'Man-Eating' variety, but did not act like one because it did not turn over on its back when grabbing its prey."

BUSY YEAR AHEAD OF PLAYERS CLUB

FULLERTON, Sept. 4.—Plans for the fall season of the Fullerton Community Players association were made by the governing board of the association at a meeting held at the home of the president, Fred Hezmalhalch.

Meeting Time Changed
The meeting date for the monthly membership sessions was at this time changed from the first Monday of each month to the second Monday evening, the governing boardings meetings to be held on the first Monday evening.

Harold Covey, treasurer of the association, resigned the office on account of the fact that his business interests keep him in Anaheim. Three new members were chosen on the board: Franklin Howard, E. Schlendering and Miss Freda Janss of Anaheim, to take the places of those who have resigned. E. Schlendering will be asked to assume the office of treasurer. Franklin Howard was appointed to act as corresponding secretary for the association.

For the purpose of enlarging the membership in the association, a committee was appointed to superintend the work of obtaining new members. Named on the committee are Albert Stuelke, Mrs. Adrian King, Mrs. Cooper, Thomas Askin and Fred Hezmalhalch. The Chamber of Commerce and Stuelke's music shop will be the headquarters for the association.

To Produce "Mikado"
Thomas Askin, director of the association, is now choosing the cast for "The Mikado," which will be one of the year's productions. "Lady Windermere's Fan" will be the year, the cast soon to be chosen for this production also.

Mr. Askin has also agreed to direct a one-act play to be given at a monthly membership meeting and to be presented as representative of the work of the association when called upon by neighboring associations to give some dramatic offering for them.

The first meeting of the year will be held Monday evening, October 8, probably in the high school auditorium, where it is hoped the meetings will be held throughout the year. At this time Mrs. Charles Hansen will present a play.

EAGLE SCOUTS TO RETURN FROM TRIP

Due to return to their homes in Santa Ana and Orange county tomorrow or Thursday, fourteen Eagle Scouts who have been enjoying an outing at Yosemite, will have some wonderful experiences to relate, according to advices received here today from Victor E. Teaney, in charge of the Boy Scout expedition.

According to Teaney, the son of Mrs. N. Beisel of Santa Ana caught one of the largest trout ever captured in the streams of Yosemite. The Boy Scout truck, leaving Yosemite Sunday, made brief stops in Stockton, Santa Cruz and other cities in Northern California. Barling mishaps, Teaney wrote, the truck should reach Santa Ana late tomorrow or early Thursday.

"This was one of the many educational trips planned for advanced Scouts," said Scoutmaster Roland Dye, "and we have assurances the boys enjoyed it to the utmost. Last year a group was sent to the state fair at Sacramento, where, in an all-around scouting tournament, they captured second place."

Anaheim Tax Rate To Be Set Sept. 13

ANAHEIM, Sept. 4.—At the first regular meeting of the Anaheim board of city trustees on the evening of September 13, one of the most important actions of the board will be to adopt the tax rate for 1923-24.

The rate last year was $1.45 per hundred. Owing to the increase in valuation of Anaheim property during the past year, which is approximately $4,000,000, it is not believed that the tax rate will be increased, stated City Clerk E. B. Merritt.

The valuation for 1921-22 was $5,907,825. This has been increased for 1923-24 to $9,085,995, according to figures in the city clerk's office.

Before adjournment H. G. Hiesler gave a resume of the work accomplished on the slough and asked that a committee be appointed to find a way to form a drainage district.

Messrs. Hiesler, Murphy and Skidmore were named to act.

Elmer E. Jahraus, the retiring president, has held the office ever since the Chamber of Commerce was organized November 2, 1917, the old Improvement Association passing out to make way for the newer organization.

The cake was adorned with two candles and the name of the celebrant, Philip. The young man received many beautiful presents.

The small guests were Doris Thurston, Doris Goff, Ila Lee Goff, and Junior Goff, Rosie Verduca, Marjorie Putnam, Shirley Morrison, Nancy Hill and Madeline McKnight, William, Henry and Johnnie Butler and Lester McKnight, and Mrs. Lester McKnight sr., Mrs. Ruth Hill and Mrs. Abbie Johnson.

Eric St. Claire, who is playing in his brother's company, drove his mother down; they were accompanied by Murry Spencer, also an actor of the "silver sheet."

Mal St. Claire, at one time director of Buster Keaton, and recently in Laguna directing the "Fighting Blood" series, has lately signed up with Warner Brothers and will direct for them.

ADDRESSES AT FAULT

Lay Some Trouble to Failure to Place Return
Location on Letter

Consider, for a moment, the troubles of the postmaster and the man who delivers your mail. It is pretty easy to blame everything on the post office department, but what goes on behind the scenes in Uncle Sam's domain?

According to Postmaster C. D. Overshiner and his corps of assistants, there are scores of contributory causes for many of the little ailments.

This paves the way for questions. You ask the postmaster: "How many letters go to the dead letter office from Santa Ana each week?"

"What are the principal reasons?" "Are the addresses on some of the letters hard to decipher?" "What can the public do to aid the post office workers?"

Many Undeliverable
Replying, the postmaster makes it clear that carelessness has much to do with the proper delivery of mail.

"By this I mean that too many people fail to place their return address upon their letters," said the postmaster. "It is not so much the illegibility of addresses, as it is the fact that residents die, move away, change their place of address, and so on."

"In this event, if the letter is undelivered and there is no return address, we have no recourse except to send the mail to the dead letter office at Washington. We send an average of 80 to 100 such letters to Washington each week. During the Christmas rush the average climbs."

"Why? Well, because many persons write to their friends and relatives only at long intervals. It often happens that a man or woman will write a friend or relative at Christmas-time when, under ordinary conditions, they would not write once in six months."

Can't Open Letters
"This frequently causes trouble, for in that lapse of time it may chance that the friend or relative may have moved to another address, without taking the trouble to change the address. Or that

Kiddies Circus Well Worth All It Cost, 2 Cents; Freaks Are Displayed For Side Show

BY ELEANOR ELLIOTT
"Buffalo Circus" read the posters and big signs out near the driveway.

Had the circus arrived so far ahead of time? I asked and with the proverbial curiosity of a newspaper writer, I followed the signs pointing the way and found myself in the midst of a really-true circus.

Did you ever want to be a kid again, so that you just ached? You know the "true version of the famous poem, don't you? It goes: "Backward turn backward, oh time in your flight, Make me a kid again just for tonight, Feed me green apples and peanuts and cake With never a thought of a following ache. Let me know pleasure as one time I did. Backward, turn backward and make me a kid."

Well that's the way I felt as I found myself surrounded with happy youngsters crying the remarkable sights of the side shows, the performance soon to begin in the main tent, the desirability of pink lemonade and pop-corn balls and all the various delights that go to make up circus day.

Parents are Gone
"Twice up at the Buffalo street home of the Wilbur Palmers that the Buffalo circus was held. Father Palmer had obligingly taken his flyver and departed on business of the afternoon, while Mother Palmer also vacated the garage and ran her car over on the neighbor's driveway. The garage was transformed. Posters everywhere urged the attractions of the different booths.

Who could resist? Digging out my pocketbook to pay the entrance price of 2 cents to the big top and a penny for each sideshow, I made the rounds, gazing in wonder at the fat boy and believing implicitly that he weighed 501 pounds and 8 ounces; audibly wondering how much material it took to make a dress for the tall woman (eight feet eleven inches if you would believe it)—and I do, for I saw it, and know.

And, more than that, I was told that when she was a child she had both legs cut off in a terrible accident and that she was fitted out with wooden legs that grew as she did! And I believe that too, for I saw them! Now doubt if you can.

Pity surged through me as I saw the legless wonder whose parents hadn't been thoughtful enough to fit him with wooden legs that might grow as he did. However he was cheerful enough as he gazed at me through his matted locks. In that same tent I looked upon the smallest child in the world. A lovely wee creature like a china doll, and barely two inches long!

Trapeze Rope Breaks
But the greatest thrill came in the weirdly-decorated fortune telling booth where Madame Valadivostsky told me such secrets that I shivered. Would anyone believe that romance awaits me and that the only thing to mar my future happiness will be that the tall, handsome statesman reserved for me by fate, is named Henry and isps?

I am very fond of praise, unfortunately, which mars an otherwise sweet disposition. I will write much poetry and cherish as a gift, a framed portrait of my future mother-in-law. Can you see why I should be so upset that it would take a glass of pink lemonade (2 cents) and a popcorn ball (2 more cents) to revive me enough to see the main show out in the pugola?

A blare of music (phonograph, manipulated when the ringmaster-mistress should call "Mother!") and into the ring leaped a remarkable acrobat whose operations on the trapeze were brought to an untimely end by the breaking of a rope. Since no fatalities resulted the performance continued with Mam'selle Macaroni in her death defying bareback riding. The steed was so spirited that it even lost its head and the act was a great success.

Dancing Acts, Too
So was the clown in his ground and lofty tumbling and his funny stunts with an automobile tire. Mrs. Tom A. Toe was announced in a singing act, but withdrew in favor of Mam'selle Unnecessary Ona Bicycle who gave a really charming interpretative dance.

What a happy group of children they were! Elizabeth Palmer, Mary Pine, Catherine Walbridge, Margaret Glenn, Frederick Glenn, Miles Norton and Judson Palmer.

Happy, too, were the members of the circus crowd who kept the air filled with confetti and included Lucille Harrison, Guy Purinton, Charles Gray, Horace Enders, Don Young, Gordon Lockett, Paul Jackson, Frank Kidd and Walter Schell, to say nothing of the group of "grown-up kids" who had the best time of all.

The circus was repeated that evening and when questioned as to the disposal of the profits, the performers gave various uses to which the money would be placed. School tablets, gingham for an apron and earrings were some of the purchases to be made.

CHURCH NEARS COMPLETION; ORGAN HERE

$115,000 Edifice Likely to Be Dedicated Early In October; Rush Work

With the arrival here of the seven-ton $12,500 Pilcher organ and with interior decorators employed by Charles F. Mitchell rapidly completing their work, indications today were that first services will be held by First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the new $115,000 edifice in October.

Although much remains to be done, excellent progress has been made, according to First Reader Carl G. Strook, and first steps in the installation of the mammoth organ, shipped here from Louisville, Ky., will be taken today.

This organ, declared to be one of the most perfect of its kind ever installed in a church in Southern California, will be equipped with Class A tubular chimes and will have many modern attachments. Installation will be in charge of D. A. C. Putney, Pilcher expert, who will be assisted by several other experienced employees of the Louisville firm. It was believed installation would be completed in three weeks.

To Speed Work
In the meantime, Strook said, interior and exterior work on the church building proper will be speeded up as much as possible. With this end in view, workmen last week removed from the parking a number of oak and camphor trees, and other laborers began grading the large lot surrounding the church, preparatory to landscape gardening work to be done by the Collins nursery of this city.

It is the plan of the building committee to replace the oak and camphor trees, which formerly bordered the sidewalks, with palm trees. This will serve a double purpose, it was explained, making it possible to extend the sidewalk to the curbing—leaving squares for the palms—and affording an excellent view of the beautiful stucco building from all angles.

One tree, however, with its many champions, has stoutly withstood the onslaughts of the axe. This tree, a magnificent oak, planted by John Hickey about forty-five years ago, will stand sentinel at the main entrance to the church, proudly doing duty after an honorable service of thirty or forty years. Work of beautifying the lawn and placing the shrubbery will begin immediately.

Equipment Enroute
With a seating capacity of 1,200, the new church will be finished in soft tones, equipped with individual walnut opera chairs, and will have many features designed to contribute to the comfort and convenience of the congregation. The seating capacity of the auditorium proper will be 800. By throwing open the doors leading to the Sunday school rooms this capacity will be increased by 400. The seating capacity of the balcony will be about 200.

First work on the new church was started last October. Virtually all the equipment, including carpets and draperies, is now in Santa Ana, or en route, and as soon as the decorators and painters have finished their labors, the chairs, carpets, curtains and other fixtures will be installed.

It is expected that many out-of-town visitors will attend the opening services, probably in October. It was also said that some of the lectures by members of the Christian Science board of lecturership may be delivered in the new edifice.

S. A. Youth Is Jailed In Theft of Cigarettes

Ray Birch, 19, truckman, was lodged at the county jail here today on a charge, by the Santa Ana police department, of having stolen ten cartons of cigarettes from a Smart and Final delivery wagon which was parked in the company's yard at First and Santa Fe streets, Saturday night.

The police were assisted in their search by Mrs. A. B. Reeves, who reported that she found five cartons of the missing cigarettes in the rear of her garage at 606 East Fifth street.

The Register reaches the far corners of the county.

BRIDEGROOM OF ONE DAY DUE FOR TRIAL

Irate Father Prepared to Tell How Daughter, 14, Was Wedded Here

The epilogue of a brief and ill-starred romance for Helen Louise Mattox, 14-year-old Los Angeles girl, was scheduled to be written when Joseph Hoyuela, 20, her bridegroom of a day, goes on trial before a jury here tomorrow on a charge of making false affidavit to the girl's age when he married her.

Hoyuela, whose trial opens at 10 a. m. in Superior Judge R. Y. Williams' court, is charged with swearing that the girl's age was 18 when they secured the marriage license in Santa Ana some months ago.

Gordon Mattox, the girl's father, in filing the criminal charge against his new son-in-law, revealed that his daughter was fully four years too young to marry, without his consent, which had certainly not been given, whether it had been asked. Moreover, she was two years too young to marry in California, with or without the consent of her parents, he said.

The father's opposition to the marriage was indicated by his speedy action in the wake of the wedding. Intruding on the day-old honeymoon at Wilmington, Mattox snatched his daughter away from Hoyuela and took her home to Los Angeles. With equal promptness, he secured the arrest of Hoyuela. Likewise, there was but slightly more delay in taking court steps here to annul the marriage.

So tomorrow, Hoyuela is scheduled to face the state's stern probe into such alleged flaunting of its laws.

FIND 'OLD TIME' CHORUS GIRLS' RULES HERE

Reminiscent of early theatrical days in Santa Ana, when the notice as to chorus girl conduct, posted backstage at the old Princess theater on North Main street, which is to be wrecked, according to its proprietor, Charles E. Walker, to make way for an elaborate $75,000 motion picture house.

Thirteen or fourteen years ago, the Princess theater was the "Bell theatre," conducted by A. B. Roberts. "Doc" Roberts, as he was familiarly called, after many theatrical adventures found his way to San Francisco, where he took his own life.

The rules of the Bell theatre, directed at chorus girls who then must have had a reputation for flightiness, were typewritten.

A few tacks and a paper frame held the edict firmly to the wall near the entrance to the lone dressing room. The passage of years yellowed the paper, but the force of the rules remained intact, though a chorus girl would be a curiosity behind the silver screen in these last hours of motion picture programs in the old show-house.

H. G. Swonger was responsible for the posting of the chorus girl program. Swonger was manager of the house, under Roberts.

Would he still consider 50 cents sufficient fine for infraction of a stage rule by a chorus girl?

The rules said:
Rule 1 All girls are to be all-ready for all rehearsals at the time set by the leader. And if at any time wishing to leave, the line it will be necessary to ask permission from the leader.

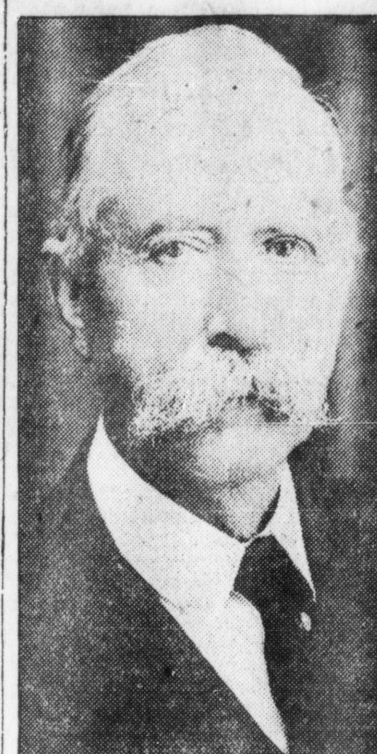

Rule 2 All girls are requested to keep all dressing rooms clean and in good shape. And to be in the House not later than 7 o'clock. With a reasonable excuse. Any person violating these rules will be subject to a fine of 50 cents.

Rule 3 It is also requested that at all times, each Girl has both clean stockings and under ware be for going on the stage. There shall also be no flirting or cutting up on the stage during any performances. By order of the manager.

SPEND 42 YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE HERE

W. W. HALESWORTH

MRS. W. W. HALESWORTH

Time Passes Swiftly, Pleasantly Remarkable Pioneer's Wife Says

Forty-two years of double blessedness and not a single regret! September 4, 1881.

Go 30 Miles Day.
Although the Halesworths made an overland and rail trip back to their old homes in 1888, they soon returned to Santa Ana, and throughout the years have called this their permanent home.

It was in the spring of 1888 that they decided, with a number of other Orange county residents, to make a prairie schooner pilgrimage to Yellowstone park.

On this trip, which required five months, the Halesworths encountered many Indians, all of whom were peaceful, and the party shot deer and antelope in Oregon and other states of the Pacific Northwest.

They arrived in Yellowstone park, August 9, 1888. Halesworth kept a perfect diary, showing the schooner made excellent progress of thirty and thirty-five miles a day, even with bad roads in certain sections. While on this trip Halesworth obtained many of the fine trees which surround his home here.

Take World Trip.
In 1909, the Halesworths laid aside business and domestic cares and made a trip to Alaska. And in 1910, accompanied by the Rev. Hugh W. Walker of Los Angeles, they made a trip around the world. They brought back some striking pictures of a tour that took them to Japan, China, Italy, Germany, Belgium, France, England and many other points.

"Forty-two years! It seems a long time and yet the years have passed swiftly and pleasantly," says Mrs. Halesworth, when you ask her how it has fared with the matrimonial bark during all these years. "Will has been a good man and we have enjoyed every year of it."

"Forty-two years!" echoes the husband, now almost 72, but as spry as a man of 50. "Well, she's been a good girl. She had to be—to put up with me!"

RIDING HORSES PASSING SAYS U. S. REPORT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. — The riding horse is fast disappearing from the country, according to a report issued by the remount Service and the American remount association.

Breeding of light horses has decreased to such an extent that riding horses of good type are almost impossible to obtain in any numbers, the report stated. The remount service of the Quartermaster Corps and the American remount association issued the joint report to describe the results of the distribution of the 285 stallions that belong to the army. More than 6,000 mares were bred to these stallions during 1922 as a result of the co-operation of farmers and breeders with the army.

"Due to unscientific and indiscriminate methods of breeding, the first useful type of riding horse has almost disappeared from the country," the report said. "The government has charged the remount service with the all-important work of eliminating the worthless scrub and supplanting him by a useful type."

"To those persons who had given the growing scarcity of riding horses any serious thought the situation became plainly apparent more than a quarter of a century ago. The World War with its immense toll of horseflesh, and the difficulty experienced in securing riding horses of even a mediocre type, brought home fully the seriousness of the situation."

While the production of more and better riding animals is the main object of the remount breeding plan, second to it only in importance is the elimination of worthless scrubs.

Detective Bureau Is Opened In Santa Ana

U. K. Carr, until recently a special investigator for the district attorney's office, was established today in his own private detective agency, with A. K. Cravath, also a former officer. Carr and Cravath have opened the C. and C. detective bureau in this city. In addition to investigations, they expect to organize a county-wide patrol service for business houses, both inside and without incorporated towns, according to an announcement made by Carr, who resigned September 1 from the district attorney's staff.

An attempted burglary of the Mayo store, 208 East Fourth street, was reported to the police today. A box, a stepladder and a crow-bar were the signs left by the would-be burglars, it was said.

STUDENT ARMY RETURNING AS OFFICIALS IN EFFORTS TO BE READY

Registrations For Various Schools Scheduled For Last Half of Week

OPEN NEXT TUESDAY

Many New Pupils Arrived
During Vacation, List of Applicants Show

The doors of Santa Ana's public educational situations will open a week from today, calling back a huge student army from a long summer of work and play.

With actual classroom activities so close at hand, officials today began preliminary preparations for the momentous task of educating the city's younger generation during the next year.

Registration of students will begin at the Santa Ana high school, junior college and junior high school Thursday morning.

Conferences with new pupils, scores of whom have arrived here this summer prepared to make this city their future residence, arrangements for new classes, preparations for athletic events and half a hundred other details kept the local school custodians extremely busy today and will continue to make them busy for the next few weeks.

Increase Possible.
While the registration at the high school is not expected to increase because of the fact that Garden Grove, Tustin and other high schools near here now are anxious to offer facilities for all their students, the number of pupils at the junior college and at the grade schools is certain to set a new mark for the city, local officials confidently believe.

The junior college registration, which last year shattered all records with a mark of 166, is virtually certain to go past the 200 total, in the opinion of D. K. Hammond, principal of the Santa Ana high school and dean of the college.

More than thirty-five students, graduates last year of the Orange high school, will be among this number, Hammond said. Many new courses will be offered students at the advanced institution, which holds its classes in the high school buildings.

Cite Registration Days
H. G. Nelson, principal of the junior high school, expressed the opinion that registration at that place would exceed 1000. The number last year was 870.

All junior high school work will be carried on at the Frances Willard school, on North Main street, until the Julius Lathrop school, on South Main street, is completed about January 1.

Only students who did not attend the junior high school or local sixth grades last year will have to register January 6, Nelson said.

High school registration will begin Thursday morning when seniors whose last names begin with letters from L to Z will sign up for classes. Seniors whose last names begin with letters from A to L will enroll in the afternoon.

This same policy will be pursued Friday when juniors register, and Saturday, when sophomores enroll, Hammond said.

S. A. Officials Issuing Firearms Permits As Required By New Law

Santa Ana owners and dealers in firearms were prepared to comply with the new state law today, which requires permits to be secured for legal carrying of firearms.

Permits to dealers today were being issued by E. L. Vegely, city clerk. Permits to owners were being issued by City Marshal Claude Rogers.

The law demands, according to Chief Rogers, that licensed dealers sell firearms only to capable persons, and that these persons in turn secure a permit to carry a weapon from the chief of police.

Automobile drivers who want to carry a small gun in the car must now secure a permit; otherwise the gun will come under the head of a concealed weapon, it was explained.

person may have left town altogether. Here we have the dead letter problem. We have no right to open the letters, to learn the address of the sender. Hence they go to Washington.

"Another source of trouble may be traced to some of our own people. Some merchants, fire dealers, for example, representing some big Eastern concerns, frequently cause us no end of trouble. It comes about in this manner: "Desiring to flood a town with advertising matter, mailed under first-class postage, Eastern dealers secure from local agents what they believe to be down-to-the-minute mailing lists. These addresses, however, are often secured by the local agents from old directories and many of these are incorrect, for one reason or another.

"Then, in due course of time, we receive, as was the case the other day, thousands of neatly addressed letters, with 2cent stamps, containing circulars, but with no return address on the envelope. One batch I have in mind came from Detroit. We know what the letters contain, but when it is impossible to deliver scores of these, as is often the case, we have no right to open them, but must send them to Washington. Finally, when they find their way back to Detroit, they will have cost the mailing firm three cents and will not have served their purpose.

"The envelope used by these firms is of a heavy grade of paper, impressive-looking, and with nothing but a Detroit postmark to indicate the origin. Naturally, a man receiving such a letter is impressed. It looks like a personal communication. Doubtless the return address is omitted for this very reason—to induce the addressee to open the letter. It may be a fine means of advertising, but, when many of the addresses are incorrect, it certainly adds to our burden."

Incidentally, the Detroit postoffice gets credit for the stamp sale and cancellation. The post office, maintaining a directory of its own, urges all new arrivals to register their addresses with the local office as soon as they take up their homes or places of business here.

Should Add Initials
"And when you write a man," said the postmaster, "be sure you include his initials. Mr. Smith may be hard to find, but Mr. J. Q. Smith may mean something to our clerks and our carriers."

It was made clear that local dealers of out-of-town corporations, mailing thousands of letters to local residents, can assist the local post office by purchasing their stamps here and mailing the letters in Santa Ana, instead of having them come from Detroit, Chicago, New York and other large centers.

"Be as careful in handling your mail as you are in handling your bank account."

This, says the postmaster, will be of general benefit to all concerned.

CLASH LOOMING IN LEAGUE ON GERMAN PLEA

GENEVA, Sept. 4.—When the fourth annual assembly of the league of nations opened at Geneva September 3 there was one question that gave every indication of dominating every moment of the session up until the very end—the admission of Germany.

Whether Germany actually files her application for admission or whether she doesn't, it is now certain that the question of getting her into the league or of keeping her out will be matters of constant discussion and constant intrigue.

The league as now composed consists of fifty-two states. With the exception of territories that are now under protectorate or colonial organization, this number embraces every independent nation in the world except the following: Abyssinia, Afghanistan, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Germany, Mexico, Russia, Turkey and the United States.

Ireland Wants In
Ireland, whose application for membership has already been filed and will unquestionably be accepted, is one of those countries of the category mentioned above, namely, that are or were under protectorate.

Two other countries of this category that may present requests for membership are the Kingdom of Iraq and the new government of Egypt. While both of these would probably be admitted, yet there is no denial of the fact that leaguers are beginning to get a trifle alarmed at the large number of English dominions that are becoming members of the league.

Were Ireland, Iraq and Egypt to be admitted at the present session, this would bring the English bloc up to nine, the other being, besides England herself, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa.

England Strong in League
To complicate the situation, England has some ten other dependencies that may eventually secure an independence from the mother country that will enable them to join the league. While an English bloc of nineteen or twenty leaguers out of a total league membership of sixty-five or sixty-seven might be regarded as alarming, yet there is nothing to prevent any of these English colonies and dominions from coming in as fast as they secure independence.

Of the nine other states that are still outside the league the principal possibilities of application for membership at the coming assembly are Germany, Mexico and Turkey. Turkey has already announced her intention of joining the league as soon as the terms of the Lausanne treaty will permit, and an especial effort will be made to get her in this year.

Mexico, which has kept out of the league so far as the result of the attitude of President Wilson against her at the Paris peace conference, is showing a steady disposition to come into the league.

However, all of these potential members will take secondary place in comparison with the question of Germany. This year the pressure within Germany herself has steadily assumed proportions that make it exceedingly probable that the German government will be obliged to yield to the double pressure from within and from without.

Germans, generally, it is declared, have reached the point where they regard the league as the only means left for getting them out of their present situation.

Will Have Opposition
While it is certain that the German application for membership will meet with opposition from France and Belgium, nevertheless as only a two-thirds vote is necessary for membership, it is conceded that Germany can never be kept out, once her application for membership is in.

The principal fight, therefore, will come on the question of on what basis she is to be admitted. Germany will certainly insist that she come in on a basis of complete equality with membership on the league council, the same as the other great powers.

However, as it is certain that both France and Belgium will oppose Germany's admission on a basis of complete equality the fight will center largely on the question of Germany's immediate admission to the council.

ADAMS, ALVAREZ IN DELHI MAIN EVENT

Hank Gatten Meets Veteran Ted Frenchie In Double Semi-Windup Tilt

While Johnny Adams, San Bernardino 128-pound champion of the Pacific Coast, has yet to taste defeat in an Orange county ring, he will face one of the toughest lads in the division tomorrow night at Boyd Ellis' Delhi arena when he begins shooting his rights and lefts at the cranium of Billy Alvarez, a boy of considerable experience.

Alvarez has nothing on Adams in cleverness and most certainly has no more of a fighting heart than the game San Bernardino youngster but he has a faculty for taking a lot of gaff and coming back with a strong finish.

Evenly matched as to weight and height, Adams and Alvarez are expected to give the fans hereabouts enough thrills in their one bout for the entire evening.

Gatten Meets Frenchie Heavy Gatten, Santa Ana middleweight, has opposed a lot of hard punching, rough and tough battlers in his days but in Ted Frenchie, the big colored fellow who packs them in at Madison Square Garden, the local 155-pounder will have a very busy evening. At that Gatten, with his last few appearances, looks capable of holding his own with the long-armed Frenchie.

Frenchie essentially is a comedian. His ring tactics are good for more than one good laugh during four rounds but at the same time he is able to send in a fusillade of stinging wallops. Frenchie was good enough to decisively outpoint Blackie Rice and they put Rice against Bert Colima, a couple of weeks ago. Frenchie holds a decision over Kid Mexico.

Gatten and Frenchie square off in the top half of a double semi-windup. Kid Louis and Young Herold, the latter of Seattle, clash in the other half of the double event.

Seattle Boy Against Louis Promoters in this parts have found difficulty in finding worthy opponents for the dashing little Louis. In Young Herold, Promotor Ellis maintains he has a boy who will force the Placencia 123-pounder to extend himself to the limit to bring home a verdict.

Eddie Dugan, a boy with a great fighting heart and a certain amount of ability, runs into a tough one in the feature preliminary bout. Frankie Kress will come up from San Diego to mingle with the husky little fellow from Huntington Beach.

Two good preliminaries are on the bill. Babe Orton, a consistent crowd-pleaser, is down with Jimmie Brown, a Wintersburg product, for the second fray. Kid Carson and Joe Moore tussle in the opener.

Man, 70, Cuts Second Set of Wisdom Teeth

GRASS VALLEY, Sept. 4.—Cutting a second set of wisdom teeth at the age of 77 years is the experience of F. R. Kirkham, Union veteran of the Civil war. The appearance of teeth was noted by Kirkham a few days ago and the phenomena has been confirmed by local dentists. At the age of 30, according to the veteran, his teeth known as wisdom teeth were extracted and the gums have remained vacant until the present time.

Check Passer Traced By Shoes He Bought

NEWMAN, Sept. 4.—Juan Alba, 21, bought a pair of shoes at the Simon Newman department store with a check for $29.99 signed by A. Colson, who, Alba explained, had been his employer. Alba was arrested by Constable W. G. Newsome when it was ascertained that A. H. Colson, the signer of the check, was unknown to the bank authorities. Newsome located Alba by the new shoes he was wearing. Alba is in the Newman jail awaiting trial.

OPEN ENTRY LISTS FOR COUNTY TENNIS TOURNAMENT TO BE PLAYED NEXT WEEK

Entries today were being made here for the first annual Orange county open tennis tournament to be held Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 8, 9 and 10. The matches will be open to any players in Orange county.

The largest entry list of any net tournament ever held in this section is expected. Entries may be made in Santa Ana at the Victor Walker sporting goods store, 205 West Fourth street, Mrs. Ed Peek, president of the Santa Ana Tennis club, announced today.

Three events have been scheduled. They are men's singles, women's singles and mixed doubles. A merchandise order will be awarded the winner of the men's singles while handsome cups will go to the champions in the other two events.

The entry books will close next Thursday evening. A small entry fee will be asked of each entrant in each event. While many of the star high school racket swingers from Santa Ana, Fullerton, Anaheim and other county cities are expected to file their entries the tourney will not be confined to these players.

TOURIST INCREASE HERE IS RECORDED

Virtually every state in the union was represented by motor tourists registering at the Chamber of Commerce auto camp grounds here during the month of August, L. A. Ludwig, camp custodian, stated today.

At the same time, the custodian announced that a new high mark was set for registrations at the camp. He reported that 477 cars were registered, and that their passengers numbered 1470. Cash receipts were $563, or $100 more than for the same month of last year. In August, 388 cars were registered.

Twenty-seven families who were stopping temporarily at the park had rented homes in Santa Ana, to remain for the winter, if not permanently, Ludwig said. Two families rented at Orange and one bought a home at Tustin. "It makes me prouder than ever of this city when I hear visiting motorists praise it," said Ludwig.

S. A. Motorcyclist Finishes Third In Championship Race

John Krieger, crack Santa Ana motorcycle speed race pilot, today had added new laurels to his long list of successes, following his sensational driving yesterday at the national 100-mile motorcycle speedway races at Kansas City, Mo., where he finished third against a field of the best track drivers in the United States.

The race was won by J. O. Brandon of Kansas City who negotiated the distance in 60 minutes, 11 seconds, at an average speed of 99.7 miles an hour.

Ralph Hepburn, of Los Angeles, who took second, and Krieger, were only a few seconds behind the winner, according to dispatches.

STAGE NEXT BEACH BOUT CARD SEPT. 14

The next boxing show at the Huntington Beach Athletic club arena will be held Friday, September 14, Kid Mexico, promoter at the city, announced today.

Mexico and his partner, Charlie O'Connor, today were working on plans for an all-star card that night. A battle royal, featuring five huge colored fellows, will be a special added attraction.

Phil Salvatore, well-known lightweight, who boxed Joe Benjamin to a draw when Jack Doyle opened his Vernon arena, may be brought to the beach for the main event, it was understood. Arrangements, however, have not yet been completed for the bout.

MEEHAN BEATS STRAGMALIA OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 4.—Willie Meehan, fat San Franciscan, retained the championship of something or other at the ball park here yesterday, when he defeated Rocco Stragmalia in four sloppy rounds. Bert Colima fought a four round draw with Jimmy O'Hagen.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

With the exception of boxing, sport encountered a noticeable mid-summer slump, if attendance figures are an indication of general interest.

Interest perhaps is regulated by the public pocketbook, and boxing around New York has taken so much money this summer. It may be that there is the same old interest in the other sports, but no cash to indulge in them.

Perhaps it is not general all over the country, but New York certainly is not turning out for baseball, track and tennis as it did last year and there must be a reason.

Presidents of the National and American leagues reported that business was better than ever in the first half of the season, but since then the attendance at the New York parks has decreased noticeably.

The Yankee Stadium, the biggest baseball plant in the world, has been filled twice this season and the new grandstand at Polo Grounds have been loaded to capacity only once. New Yorkers find it very unusual to go to a Sunday contest around game-time and be able to find a good seat.

The Giants, on their last western trip, made a new record for drawn customers, but considering that the champions are regarded as one of the greatest of all ball clubs and that their opportunity to see them are limited out of New York, this is not unusual.

When they fail to draw at home and when the great Babe Ruth, going as he never went before, does not crowd that Yank park, it is highly unusual.

Some blame the runaway races, but from New York's attitude to accept nothing but a winner in the past, it should be expected that the two champion New York teams should be doing a terrific business.

The radio cannot be blamed, as the club owners have seen to it particularly that no broad-casting concerns are allowed near enough to a ball park to give a play-by-play description of the games.

Baseball men blame the boxing craze and the use of ball parks for fighting as one of the most responsible causes for the slump in interest. It is quite possible that action will be taken this winter to close all major league parks to boxing.

Tennis, which has been a great drawing sport around New York in the past, also slumped in interest this year. Attendance at the Seabright tournament, the British-American women's team matches and the national women's championship was so small that it caused comment.

With a new $250,000 stadium built to accommodate 14,000 spectators, the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills was thought to have come into the possession of a great pale elephant.

Officials of the club feel no alarm, however. They claim that they did not build the stadium for commercial purposes and that it was erected as a monument to tennis.

"We know that the stadium is four or five years ahead of the time and it was built for the purpose of having something that will survive more than three or four years," a member of the club said.

Since Helen Wills has become the American champion there is no doubt that her personality and her great ability will greatly revive interest in the woman's game.

The inter-collegiate track and field championship and the Penn-

SUPREMACY OF U. S. NET TEAM ASSURED

Tilden, Johnson Show Yank Tennis Superior In Big Davis Cup Tourney

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Winner of the Davis cup for the fourth year in succession, the United States, it seems certain now, will retain the championship of the world at tennis as long as William T. Tilden and Wm. M. Johnston retain their game.

There is nothing to indicate that either of America's "two Billies" have reached or are even near the end of their string and as long as foreign nations do not develop better players, Tilden and Johnston should be able to reign supreme even after they have slipped a little.

Seventeen nations challenged and participated in the preliminary rounds leading up to the challenge round between Australia and the United States which was finished yesterday at Forest Hills with the Americans winning a score of four to one.

Of the all stars that played in the cup series, only James O. Anderson, the tall Australian captain, showed form sufficient to place him near the two American aces.

HURLS 9 STRAIGHT STRIKES IN MAJORS

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The feat of Pitcher Thurston of the White Sox in retiring the opposing side on nine straight strikes is without parallel in major league ball as far as discerned by the records.

Pitching against the top of the Philadelphia batting order in a recent game, which the Athletics finally won in 13 innings, Thurston retired the hard hitting A's on nine pitched balls.

The first pitch to Outfielder McGowan, leadoff man, was a called strike. He swung at the next ball and missed. The third pitch was a called strike.

Up steps Chick Galloway, hard hitting shortstop. Galloway swings at the first pitch and misses. The second pitch is a called strike. A healthy swing that fails to connect with the third pitch, sends Galloway benched.

Sammy Hale, is next up. Hale swings at three perfect strikes missing each and every one by a healthy margin.

Thurston had retired the side on nine pitched balls, three called strikes and six missed strikes. Not so much as a puny foul was made off his delivery in that inning.

"I would have called every one of the pitches a strike if the batters had failed to swing at them," remarked Empire Hildebrand, who was back of the plate.

Do You Know?

Is the race arranged between Papyrus, the English Derby winner and an American thoroughbred the only recent international horse race?

No. The last international race was staged in October 1920 between Man of War, the American horse, and Sir Barton, the Canadian thoroughbred. It was won by Man of War.

Why have so many attempts been made recently to swim the English channel?

Because the weather conditions at this time of the year are considered to be the best for attempts. The success of two swimmers also has spurred others to also attempt the "Sketch".

Prizes of 1,000 pounds for anyone making the swim under conditions it laid down.

Have any efforts been made to match Miss Helen Wills and Mille Suzanne Lenglen for the world's tennis championship?

It is too late in the season to bring about such a match now, but it may be suggested for next season.

Public demand is almost sure to bring about a meeting between the two girl stars within a few years. If Miss Wills should go to England next year and enter the Wimbledon championships, she might be able to meet the French star.

Pennsylvania relay games at Philadelphia fell below the usual figures for attendance and it is hard to explain, as Philadelphia is one of the best track towns in the country.

Boxing has surpassed all previous bounds both in interest and in attendance. Considering that it costs so much for ringside seats at championship fights it must be that boxing is now the ranking American sport from the public viewpoint.

Fighting that more than a million and a half dollars must have gone out for boxing around New York this summer, it is but natural perhaps that other sports had to suffer.

There is still complaint about the prices charged for baseball and tennis. The owners of the Giants practically did away with bleacher seats, and bleacherites do not figure a grandstand seat where the bleachers used to be as worth so much more money just because they are covered.

One fan put it this way, and it may be the way a lot of fans look at it: "When you pay from three to five bucks to see a good show you know you are going to see a good show and come out satisfied, but when you pay money to see a ball game or a tennis match you cannot be assured that it is not going to be a bore, and you will not walk out in the middle of it."

THE ISLE OF RETRIBUTION

By EDISON MARSHALL
© LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY, 1923

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Godfrey Cornet sends his son, Ned, on a voyage to Northern Canada and Alaska to exchange two thousand silk and velvet gowns with the Indians for fine furs. Godfrey offers to split the profits 75-25, the lion's share to Ned.

Cornet is engaged to Lenore Hardenworth, who offers to accompany Ned on the trip if he will take her mother with them. Ned hires Bess Gilbert to go as seamstress. The party is bid good-speed by hosts of friends.

Godfrey Cornet comes to the dock to bid Ned goodbye. He asks Miss Gilbert to give his son a woman's care. Mrs. Hardenworth objects to eating at the same table with the seamstress. Lenore makes up her mind to avoid the three aristocrats as much as possible.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY "That's three for each table, considering one of the men has to stay at the wheel. Why shouldn't one of these plates be removed?"

"Of course, if you prefer it," Half ashamed of his reluctance, he called the negro and had the fourth plate removed. "The Gilberts were at the second table," he explained. When the man had gone, Ned turned in appeal to Lenore. "She'll be here in a minute. What shall I tell her?"

"Just what you told the servant—that she is to wait for the second table. Ned, you might as well make it clear in the beginning, otherwise it will be a problem all through the trip. Wait till she comes in, then tell her."

Ned agreed, and they waited for the sound of Bess' step on the stairs. Mrs. Hardenworth's large lips were set in a hard line. Lenore had a curious, eager expectancy. Quietly Julius served the soup, wondering at the ways of his superiors, the whites, and the local natives grew into minutes.

Still they did not see Bess' bright face at the door. "Send for her," Mrs. Hardenworth urged. "There's no reason you shouldn't get this done and out of the way tonight, so we won't have to be distressed about it again."

Wholly cowed, Ned called to the negro waiter. "Please tell Miss Gilbert to come here," he ordered. "I want to see her." The waiter, wide grin crinkling his cheeks, failing wholly to understand the real situation and assuming that "de boss" had relented in his purpose to exclude the seamstress from the first table, the colored man sped cheerfully away. Bess had already spoken kindly to him; Julius had deplored the order to remove her plate almost as a personal affront.

Again they waited for the seamstress to come. The women were grim, forbidding. And in a moment they heard steps at the threshold.

But only Julius, his face beset with gloom, came through the opened door. "De lady say she 'stremely sorry," he pronounced, bowing. "But she say she's already promised Mista McNab to eat with him."

THE Choron sped straight north, out of the Sound, through the inside passage. Days were bright; skies were clear, displaying at night a marvelous intricacy of stars; the seas glittered from the kindly September sun. They put in at Vancouver the night following their departure from Seattle, looking in at certain heavy stores, and continued their way in the lee of Vancouver Island.

Straight north, day after day! To McNab, a man who had cruised ten years on Alaskan waters, the air began to feel like home. It was crisp, surging cool in the lungs, fragrant with balsam from the wooded islands. Already Ned had begun to realize some of his ideas in regard to the North. It was no longer easy to believe that his father had exaggerated its beauty and its appeal, its desolation and its vastness. It was a strange thing for a man used to cities to go day upon day without seeing scarcely a village beside the sea, a single human being other than those of his own party. Here was one place, it seemed, where the hand of man had touched but lightly if at all.

The impression grew the farther north he went. Ever there was less sign of habitation upon the shore. The craft passed through narrow channels between mountains that cropped up from the sea, it skirted wooded islands, it passed forgotten Indian villages where the totem poles stood, queerly weathered before the forsaken homes of the chiefs. The glasses brought out a wonderland scene just beyond the reach of their unaided sight—glaciers and snowfields, lofty peaks and waterfalls.

The mystic, brooding spirit of the North was already over them. They had touched at Ketchikan, the port of entry to Alaska, and thence headed almost straight west, across the gulf of Alaska and toward the far-stretching end of the Alaskan Peninsula. During these days they were far out of sight of land, surrounded only by an immeasurable ocean that rolled endlessly for none to see or hear.

They were already far beyond the limits of ordinary tourist travel. The big boats piled as far as Anchorage at the head of Cook Inlet—to the north and east of them now—but beyond that point the traffic was largely that of occasional, auxiliary schooners of varying respectability. They seemed to have the ocean almost to themselves, never to see the top of a sail on the horizon, or a fisherman's craft scudding into port. And the solitude crept into the spirits of the passengers of the Choron.

It became vaguely difficult to keep up a holiday atmosphere. It was increasingly hard to be gay, to fight down certain inner voices that had hitherto been stifled. Some way, life didn't seem quite the same, quite the gay dream that had hitherto been. And yet this immeasurable vista of desolate waters—icy cold for all the sunlight that kissed the up-reaching lips of the waves—was some way like a dream, too. The brain kept clear enough, but it was all somewhat confusing to an inner brain, a secret self that they had scarcely been aware of before. It was hard to say which was the more real—the gay life they had left, the laughter of which was still an echo in their ears, or these far-stretching wastes of wintry waters.

They couldn't help but be thoughtful. Realities crept home to them that they had no desire to admit. A fervent belief in their own sophistication had been their dominant point of view, a disillusionment and a realism that was the tone of their generation, denying all they could not see or hear, holding themselves superciliously aloof from that gracious wonder and simplicity that still blessed the little children; but there was something that was inescapably beyond them. They couldn't laugh it away. They couldn't cast it off with a phrase of cheap slang; de-meaning it in order to hold firm to their own philosophy of Self. Here was something that shook their old attitude of self-love and self-sufficiency to its foundations, and they thought they knew life, these three, they thought they were bigger than life, that they had mastered it and found it out and stripped all delusions from it, but now their utterable conceit, the pillar of their lives, was threatening to fall. This sunlit sea was too big for them; too big and too mighty and too old.

The trouble with Ned's generation was that it was a godless generation: the same evil that razed Babylon to the dust. Ned and his kind had come to be sufficient unto themselves. They had lost the wonder and fear of life, and that meant nothing less than the loss of their wonder and fear of the great Author of life. To these, life had been a game that they thought they had mastered. They had laughed to scorn the philosophies of a hundred generations, of nobler men had built up with wondering reverence. Made arrogant by luxury and ease, they knew of nothing too big for them, no mystery that their contemptuous gaze could not penetrate, no wonder that their reckless hands could not unveil. They were drunk with their own glory, and the ultimate Source of all things had no place in their philosophies or their thoughts. It was true that churches flourished among them, that Charity received her due but the old virile faith, the reverent wonder, the mighty urge that has achieved all things that have been worth achieving were cold and dead in their hearts. But out here in this little, wind-blown craft, surrounded by an immensity of desolation beyond the power of their minds to grasp, it was hard to hold their old complacency. Their old philosophies were barrenly insufficient, and they couldn't repel an ever deepening sense of awe. The wind, sweeping over them out of the vastness was a new voice, striking the laughter from their lips and instilling a coldness that was almost fear in their warm, youthful blood. The sun shone now, but soon vast areas, not far off, would be locked tight with ice; never the movement of a wave, never the flash of a sea-bird's wing over the wastes; and the thought sobered them and perhaps humbled them a little, too. Sometimes, alone on the deck at night, Ned was close to the door of reality, the most profound discovery that the dreadful spirit of God moved upon the face of these desolate waters, no less than, as is told in Genesis, at creation's dawn.

Everything would have been different if they had come in a larger boat, for instance, one of the great liners that plied between Seattle and Anchorage. In that case, likely, they would have had no trouble in retaining their old point of view. The brooding tone of the North would have passed them by; the journey could still have remained a holiday instead of the strange, wandering dream that it was. The reason was simply that on a liner they would not have broken all ties with their old life. There would have been games and dancing, the service of menials, social intercourse and all the superficialities and pretenses that had until now composed their lives. Their former standards, the attitudes from which they regarded life, would have been unaltered. There would have been no isolation and thus no darkening of their moods, no haunting uneasiness that they would have been described, no whispering voices heard but dimly out of the sea. They could have remained in their own old ramparts of callousness and scorn. But here they were alone—lost and far on an empty sea, under an empty sky.

like a dream, too. The brain kept clear enough, but it was all somewhat confusing to an inner brain, a secret self that they had scarcely been aware of before. It was hard to say which was the more real—the gay life they had left, the laughter of which was still an echo in their ears, or these far-stretching wastes of wintry waters.

They couldn't help but be thoughtful. Realities crept home to them that they had no desire to admit. A fervent belief in their own sophistication had been their dominant point of view, a disillusionment and a realism that was the tone of their generation, denying all they could not see or hear, holding themselves superciliously aloof from that gracious wonder and simplicity that still blessed the little children; but there was something that was inescapably beyond them. They couldn't laugh it away. They couldn't cast it off with a phrase of cheap slang; de-meaning it in order to hold firm to their own philosophy of Self. Here was something that shook their old attitude of self-love and self-sufficiency to its foundations, and they thought they knew life, these three, they thought they were bigger than life, that they had mastered it and found it out and stripped all delusions from it, but now their utterable conceit, the pillar of their lives, was threatening to fall. This sunlit sea was too big for them; too big and too mighty and too old.

The trouble with Ned's generation was that it was a godless generation: the same evil that razed Babylon to the dust. Ned and his kind had come to be sufficient unto themselves. They had lost the wonder and fear of life, and that meant nothing less than the loss of their wonder and fear of the great Author of life. To these, life had been a game that they thought they had mastered. They had laughed to scorn the philosophies of a hundred generations, of nobler men had built up with wondering reverence. Made arrogant by luxury and ease, they knew of nothing too big for them, no mystery that their contemptuous gaze could not penetrate, no wonder that their reckless hands could not unveil. ## EVENING SALUTATION

The things I prize of greatest worth
Are just the common things of earth:
The rain, the sun, the grass, the trees,
The flowers, the birds, the glorious breeze,
Clouds that pass, and stars that shine,
Mountains, valley, all are mine.
Rivers broad, and open sea
Are riches none can take from me;
And day by day my thanks I give
That with these common things I live.

ON AIR ARMAMENT

The American Legion is going to conduct a national referendum regarding the advisability of holding another arms limitation conference in Washington to deal with air armament. In doing so the Legion is bringing effectively to public notice one of the biggest questions of the future.

Most people who have looked into the matter dispassionately agree that sea armament will be of minor importance hereafter, and land armament, too, is destined to become obsolete—that the wars of the future will be fought and won in the air. France is so convinced of this that it has created the most powerful air fleet in the world, and dominates Europe accordingly. Its air equipment is said to include planes carrying 75 millimeter guns, planes with as many as six machine guns and their crews, enormous bombers, special fighting ships armed with battleship steel and actual troops of the air.

Great Britain, fearing French aerial preparedness, proposes to spend large sums to catch up. America, in turn, will be obliged to increase her air forces greatly or lose its power of self-defense. There is approaching a competition in air armament precisely like the costly and dangerous battleship competition from which the big naval powers are just emerging.

If it is wise to limit battleship competition by international agreement, it is wiser still to limit battleship competition because the latter is yet in its early stages and comparatively easy to control, and the results of unrestrained competition in air fleets carrying troops, bombs and poison gas are far more dreadful to contemplate than the ravages of sea navies. Aircraft can reach anywhere, destroy anything and kill anybody. It is high time that measures were taken to restrict aircraft to the purposes of peaceful commerce and necessary police work.

ARBITRATION TREATIES

The renewal of the arbitration treaty between the United States and Japan the other day served as a useful reminder to people who had forgotten that such a treaty existed. It was made first in 1908, was renewed in 1913 and 1918, and is now renewed for the third time. There are similar treaties with Britain, France and nearly all of the other powers.

An agreement to arbitrate instead of going to war, for a period of five years, is a rather limited peace arrangement, but considerably better than nothing at all. It is good training for the time when nations will enter into permanent arrangements of that sort.

A notable addition to the Japanese treaty, as now extended, is a provision that in case the United States Senate consents to the late President Harding's proposal for membership in the Court of International Justice, the two countries will take steps for the submission to the new court of such disputes as are covered by the present treaty. The United States is introducing such a clause now in all its arbitration treaty renewals.

The government evidently recognizes the world court as a simple and convenient substitute for a large and complicated set of two-party arbitration treaties.

CONSTITUTION WEEK

On the ground that Americans ought to know a great deal more than they do know about the Constitution, the American Bar association has set apart September 16 to 22 as Constitution Week.

Local communities everywhere should co-operate with the bar association in considering, and as nearly as possible in carrying on, the program suggested by the national association. According to the program, churches are requested to have sermons on the opening day (Sunday) based on the text, "Remove not the Ancient Landmarks which the fathers have set"—Proverbs 22:28.

Then the suggestive program for the rest of the week is:

Monday—The setting and inspiration of the Constitution, giving the historic background.
Tuesday—Watchwords of the Constitution.
Wednesday—The Bill of Rights.
Thursday—John Marshall's Interpretation.
Friday—Dangers to free institutions established by the Constitution.
Saturday—Duty to uphold the Constitution.

OPERA IN GEORGIA

It is difficult to see just what Georgia expects to gain by voting a heavy tax on all opera companies appearing within its borders. Its House of Representatives has lately passed an amendment to the tax act providing that opera companies appearing in all cities of over 100,000 population shall be taxed $2,500 per contract, and in cities of less size $1,000 per contract.

The Metropolitan Opera Company of New York gives a short season yearly in Atlanta, and a tax of this nature voted two years ago had to be paid by its guarantors.

Smaller companies, heard with delight in other states, will doubtless find themselves marching through Georgia without pause, as they are seldom fortunate enough to have wealthy guarantors. As a means of securing money for the state, this source would not seem to be very fruitful; but as a method of discouraging the enjoyment of opera at present and the development in that direction in the future, the tax may be only too effective.

SOFTEN THE WARNING HORN

Announcement is made of a new automobile horn which has "a rolling tone that gives warning yet does not rack nerves, but when emergency requires descends to a tigerish roar."

Many people, pedestrians and motorists alike, will see in this new hope for frazzled nerves. The type of horn now generally used is so harsh, raucous and strident that as automobile traffic increases, with consequent increase in the frequency any down-town section or danger become a bedlam.

Nobody has ever explained why to scare a person to death traffic warning to him. Automobile sensitive people to sanitarious part of a growing offenses which multiply the punishments. While solving other traffic experts might pay a quality of motor horns.

The best educated man is he to the point.

They Don't

From The B. St. Louis has again set an example, a pig in her Zoo, someone said, "everybody knows a pig look like." Do they?

We'll make a rough guess at children in the city of New York or a pig; perhaps half at Philadelphia. Perhaps when they grow up they will go to St. Louis the pig in the St. Louis Zoo, someone will tell them how it looked.

What's all this to do with a fellow knows. To the vast majority, the most important facts are a cow and the pig to the East S. York.

The spread of knowledge regarding well known is very meagre. If you doubt this, ask a dozen men about any product.

Don't let us fool ourselves. The little they do know they'll soon we keep reminding them.

What does Fisher make? Whose are said to be best. Was Plant a steamer? Does Campbell make soup or both? Does Bird lay eggs or is Fenestra — Klearflax — Warsworth — Tavnans — Kelly — Armstrong?

These are not obscure names. They that many thousands of dollars have been popularize—to make household words, been heard and read. How many are remembered? If we would keep ourselves in the minds of we would have known us, we must constantly them.

If we want children to know how a cow looks must show them a cow.

The Race of the Future

Stockton Independent.

What will be the dominant race of the future? The race that will furnish most of the master minds and the leadership for the rest of the world, as was once done by the Egyptians, the Greeks, and the Romans, and is now being done perhaps by the Anglo-Saxons?

Charles P. Steinmetz says it will be the Slavs. Not the Russians alone, but the Slavic peoples of eastern and southeastern Europe, of whom the Russians are the most numerous and notable group.

Anglo-Saxon leadership received in the last war, Steinmetz thinks, a blow from which it will not recover. Also, the Anglo-Saxon civilization has been strongly individualistic, and he believes individualism has served its purpose. "Collectivistic civilization," he says, "will spread over Europe from the east, where the leaders of the future will be born."

And what of America? To it, surely, belongs the immediate future. It is the strongest nation now on earth, and making the most rapid advance in material civilization. And of all the Anglo-Saxon groups, it lays most stress on the rights of the individual. Can it be that the United States is the generation of the future, or another century or two, the scepter is to pass to the Slavs because they are more inclined to work together for their common good, in a world where co-operation becomes more and more necessary?

Will Fight State Plan

Fresno Bee.

The board of supervisors with the advice of the district attorney have refused to sign a contract with the state under the Breed Bill whereby all traffic officers will be appointed by the state motor vehicle department and paid from county funds.

This will leave Fresno County without traffic officers.

First blush might bring condemnation to the supervisors for this action.

A thorough study should give them the heartiest commendation for their insistence that Fresno county shall fight to the highest court before it submits to this iniquitous measure.

Without rhyme or reason the Breed law strips the counties of their power to appoint their own traffic officers and after doing that makes the counties pay for the traffic officers appointed by the motor vehicle department.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

FURTHER THOUGHTS ON GOITRE.

In a former article on goitre I spoke of its absence among fish eating people; that the iodine therein seemed to keep people free from it. In the real goitrous condition, with the bulging eyes, nervousness, and rapid heart, there has seemed only one way toward cure, and that was by surgery.

As a matter of fact, so many people have shrunk from operative measures, that physicians in an effort to give help, have been able to relieve these measures from much of their distress by hygienic measures.

You see most of these cases give a history of a shock, a fright, a severe illness of some kind, and in a few weeks thereafter, they have noticed the lump on the neck, that their heart seemed to pound, and that they were extremely nervous and irritable.

So physicians using this as a basis have endeavored to treat the patient from this viewpoint. Accordingly the first thought in these cases is rest. Rest in the real sense of the word. Mental and physical rest.

Where possible the sufferers are sent to the country, to the quietness and to the fresh air. Away from shopping, picture shows, household or business cares, to the restful influence of country life. If this be impossible, they are forced to rest in a well ventilated, sunlit room, a number of hours each day.

Rest is the big consideration. Nothing but the lightest form of literature is allowed, because excitement or emotional disturbances of any kind are very harmful. Catering to the appetite is the next thing in order, and light, nourishing, easily digested meals are prepared in a variety of ways. However, anything that would be stimulating to the nervous system is prohibited such as alcohol, tea and coffee. The meals are small but are given as often as five times during the day.

Constipation is not tolerated, and some light health salt is used daily. The advice then is, whether you contemplate operation or not, the above simple hygienic measures may correct the condition entirely, or should surgical measures be decided upon, you would be in better shape to undergo the operation.

While

San Francisco Journal

Out of the confusion of things heard in the day's work comes this phrase, author unknown—

"While you're green you're growing; when you think you're right, you're stagnating."

Reading recently the story of the life struggle of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, we concede the wisdom of this epigram.

Here was a boy, greenest of the green. Being musically inclined and by profession one who taught the deaf to hear and the vocally defective to speak, Bell verily stumbled on the great secret of the telephone.

He was working one day on certain principles concerning spoken vowel sounds and the musical tones inherent in such. After many weary months of research he discovered the secret that had been discovered and covered in a famous treatise by Helmholtz years before. Green as grass!

That experience turned young Bell toward the study of electricity, and he was soon testing Helmholtz's theories, which were incidentally his own. The world profits by the success of those studies.

Bell was a shy, brooding spirit. He was the last to "know it all," even up to his death. Green as grass to the end, he grew to the end. Dr. Bell's story is similar to that of hundreds of others: boys who have poured into the cities from rural places, open-mouthed, credulous, and yet with the seed of success in their very greenness.

When you think you have arrived you have simply stopped.

Every time the Sun looks in He's sayin' "Howdy do?"
I hope you like the Morning
That I made up just for you?

Just for you!"

NEARING THE END.

"I am not going to talk long this evening," said the speaker. "I've been cured of that. The other night I was making a speech when a man entered the hall and took a seat right in the front row. I had not been talking an hour when I noticed he was becoming fidgety. Finally he arose and asked:

"Shay, how long you been lecturin'?"

"About four years, my friend," I replied.

"Well," he remarked, as he sat down, "I'll stick around; you must be near through."

"Hello, Mose; how long you-all in jail for?"

"Three weeks."

"What did you do?"

"Jest killed ma wife."

"An' you-all got just three weeks."

"Dat's all. Den dey's gwine ter hang me."

Johnson and the Nomination

Fresno Republican

The surreptitious publication of correspondence of Senator Hiram Johnson, which has been in California and elsewhere, created a furore quite out of proportion to the importance of the matter itself or the petty vanity by which, apparently, it was obtained. The letter was in language which shows it was private correspondence. There was no public reason for the publication of its contents. The means by which it was obtained are utterly to be condemned.

The incident serves to bring to the fore the relation between Johnson and the coming Presidential campaign. It may make acute earlier discussion of Presidential personality, which, otherwise, it might have been wise to bring to issue.

Undoubtedly the single fact that Johnson has become President of the United States, and that before he was Vice President he was considered a Presidential candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency, is an obvious fact.

There may, however, be considerable question of the right of Johnson to the rank and file of the Republican voters of the United States. And it is quite possible that the determination of Senator Johnson of California to seek the nomination might be affected by the record that Mr. Coolidge makes in the White House.

It is unfortunate politically, therefore, that the relation of Mr. Johnson to the California campaign, including any struggle that there may be to control delegations, has been made acute this early.

But this issue has been raised, and all who are interested in the political future of this state must meet it.

The Republican feels itself in entire accord with the attitude taken by Senator Johnson on all domestic questions, as far as they are of any importance. It has differed with Mr. Johnson radically on foreign relations, but has said frankly that it does not think that those foreign relations are a matter about which Mr. Johnson has any incorrigible knowledge, and is satisfied that if he were President he would proceed in international matters much as have men who have occupied the White House hitherto. The only man who has ever been responsible for our foreign relations and has not grown in the job has been William Jennings Bryan, who learned nothing and changed nothing when he was secretary of state. Mr. Wilson, Mr. Harding, Mr. Hughes were all capable of learning, and much as we might differ from any one of them we could have a respect for their instincts in conducting the foreign relations of the United States for the best possible interests of the American people. So with Senator Hiram Johnson.

Being in accord with Mr. Johnson on those issues which have constituted "progressivism" in California and in the United States, The Republican is very favorable toward his candidacy for the Presidency. It is not committed to him, as he well knows. If it should find that Mr. Johnson makes any sort of commitments in seeking his nomination that are contrary to the interests of the People of California, it will cease to support him. It will not enter into any of the minor political struggles which will be intended to manipulate the California delegation for or against him. It will work as an expression of California opinion, on the subject of the Presidency, as free and as open as possible.

Senator Johnson ought not to fear such an expression of opinion. Last year he was shown to be more popular than ever before, when an attack was made on him that was more logical than ever before and better supported by men of intelligence and shrewdness in political affairs.

The Republican party of California ought to be for Hiram W. Johnson for President if it is advisable for him to run in 1924.

It ought to be for him spontaneously, not as a result of political intrigues for him. And the good sense of the Republican voters of California should be exerted to prevent the manipulation of the California delegation against him.

Much can happen in the next few months to decide whether it will be wise for the Republican party to propose Mr. Johnson in the 1924 convention. But in the meantime he should preserve the spirit of our primary election laws, which declare that the Republicans, like the voters of other parties, declare through their primaries, their choice of national candidates. And no sort of preliminary arrangements or bargains or compacts should be allowed to alienate the support of this state from Senator Johnson, if his candidacy is called for by the national situation.

To cover an acre of ground with an inch of rain, 1000 tons of water would be required.

JOHNNIE of the CIRCUS and his CUFFY BEAR ~
~ By ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

A Lady Midget! cried Commodore Mudgett. And he put some tiny gold rings in his ears.

Then he began to move the telescope about. Presently he exclaimed, "Ha! There's something interesting in the offing. A lady midget, as I'm alive!" He lowered the glass and turned to Johnnie Green breathlessly. "She must have joined the circus today. She's gone into the mess tent. Up anchor! Hurry! It's dinner time."

Commodore Mudgett paused to put some tiny gold rings in his ears, and brush his blue uniform, and dab the dust off his little shoes. Then they started.

"She's no taller than I am," the Commodore confided, referring to the person he had seen entering the mess tent. "She may be plumper. But she's certainly no taller." It was easy to see that he was much excited.

To his great surprise, and Johnnie Green's as well, there was nobody in the mess tent except the darky waiter, William, and Miss Queenie Duggs, the Fat Lady, who, when it was possible, was always prompt at her meals.

"This is queer," the Commodore murmured in Johnnie's ear. "Where do you suppose she went?" Johnnie Green suddenly solved the mystery.

"You must have been looking at her, through the wrong end of your spy glass," he whispered, nodding his head toward the Fat Lady.

Commodore Mudgett's face fell as he realized his blunder. "My eyes!" he gasped. "I'm a terrapin." That's exactly what happened.

(Copyright 1923, Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York.)

Gilbert Sproule, former S. P. agent at West Orange, now a state employee on the San Francisco waterfront, has been sued by the First National bank for $584, on a note given as Sproule's share for the purchase of a stallion in 1906. Those who bought the stallion were J. R. Fowler, Ralph Fuller, Fred Gerken, James Conley, A. L. Joplin, and H. L. Wakeham.

Johnnie Green agreed to the coming Carnival of Products, and her court held a meeting yesterday. Members of her court are Misses Stella Blom, Marie Finney, Anaheim; Rachel Knapp, Garden Grove; Mattie Bushard, Huntington Beach; Florence Yoch, Laguna Beach; Ina Ainsworth, Ella Cosart, Orange; Harriet Andrews, Edith White, Santa Ana; Winifred Crawford, Tustin; Daisy Edwards, Westminster.

Johnnie Green took a good, long look at him. He realized, after a while, that the Commodore was beckoning to him. So he hurried back.

"Let me take that, my hearty," said the Commodore, reaching for the telescope. "I've just had a big idea. He trailed the telescope, wrong end to, upon the hippopotamus. "Ha! I ought to have done this before," he muttered. "He doesn't look half bad, this way. I'll remember this, when I'm sailing the Seven Seas. When anything's unpleasant, I'll look at it through the wrong end of my spy glass."
